NO. SHORE CITIES ROCKED

Earth Shocks Jar Buildings and Cause Near-Panic from Beverly to Gloucester

Jarring buildings to their foundations, waking people from sleep and causing a near-panic in several towns along the North Shore, a mysterious disturbance believed to have been an earthquake, rocked the earth from Beverly to Gloucester shortly after 1 a. m. today.

Windows rattled and dishes skidded. People, awakened from their dreams by the shaking of their homes, rushed out, many believing a terrific powder explosion had taken place in their vicinity. Police stations and telephone exchanges were deluged with calls.

No trace of an explosion has been found.

At Beverly, it is reported by the police that the shock was terrific, shaking police headquarters and city hall.

Lieutenant Francis J. Minton, on night duty, reported the shock as having both sound and motion, and being terrific in its latter aspect.

Many Beverly residents telephoned in reports, seeking information, as they did in Gloucester, Salem, Wenham and Hamilton.

Other towns in the same North Shore section were without reports of the disturbance.

At Gloucester, Acting Sergeant Charles O'Malley reported that buildings were shaken and that there was a sound like the low rumble of thunder accompanying the disturbance.

The night man at the Wenham telephone exchange reported the shock as a severe one. Many inquiries came in over the telephone wires in Wenham from residents of that section, who believed an explosion had occurred.

Patrolman R. R. Fifield of the Hamilton police, on duty at the time, heard a rumble like thunder and felt a shock which jarred buildings throughout the town.

"The jar was like an earthquake tremor," said Officer Fifield.

Many Salem residents were alarmed by the disturbance.

SANE, HELD IN ASYLUM 2 YEARS

Judge, Releasing Mrs. Orrel, Believes Many Others Are Committed Unjustly

Springfield, July 25.—Two years in a mad house and sane.

Mary U. Orrel of Williamsett walked out of the Northampton insane asylum today a free woman after a residence among maniacs of two years.

She was freed by order of Judge Charles L. Long of Probate Court who declared he was certain that "there are many others like Mrs. Orrel who are classed as insane and held under commitment in madhouses who ought to be free."

Neighbors termed Mrs. Orrel "queer." The court said she was "eccentric in her behavior." It all amounts to the same thing. Somebody succeeded in sending her to a madhouse. The day she entered she began a fight to be freed, it ended today.

Judge Long stated in announcing his finding that there was no evidence that the woman had ever been insane. The only evidence presented against the woman, he declared, merely proved that Mrs. Orrel was "eccentric in her behavior."

SUBWAY AND 50 CELLARS FLOODED

Thirty persons were driven from the rooming house at No. 303 Tremont street today when the bursting of a thirty-inch water main on Tremont street, between Warrenton and Church streets, caused the undermining of the foundations.

Louis Single, a baker employed in the Best Bakery Company plant in the cellar, barely escaped drowning when the flood poured in through the windows.

The lower level of the subway, where the Tremont street cars enter, was under ten feet of water, causing a complete tieup of all lines running on Tremont street and Shawmut avenue.

More than fifty cellars were flooded. A section of sidewalk more than 100 feet in length caved in and the pavement was lifted three inches and more in places.

Guests in Hotel Commodore were

'BLUEBEARD' IN SCORE OF ROMANCES

Society Beauties and Stage Stars Victims of Heart-Smashing "Devil Fish"

New York, July 25.—A Bluebeard who killed the reputations of a score of his loves, instead of their bodies, has arisen out of the phase of New York's by-ways of intrigue.

The man accused of this weird role, George Maxwell, president of the American Society of Authors, has been called the romantic Devil Fish of New York.

The octopus, after strangling its victims fits numerous tentacles enable it to catch many prizes at one time; emits a deadly fluid which poisons those within its embrace.

HOW HE PLAYED GAME

Maxwell, too, is accused of throwing out a poison, which took the form of ink. District Attorney Malone, opposing a motion for the dismissal of the indictment of Maxwell, said that in every amour in which Maxwell figured, the procedure was the same, as follows:

He would make violent love to a woman.

He would win her confidence and her love.

He would woo a second woman while he was "playing" the first.

After he was through with the first, her husband and friends would in each case, receive "poison pen" letters vilifying the woman, telling of her relations with Maxwell and containing references to the woman's character.

It is said that when the full list of the indictment of Maxwell, said that in every amour in which Maxwell figured, the procedure was the same, as follows:

SUES FOR HUSBAND'S DEATH LAID TO POISONOUS LIQUOR

Webster, July 25.—Claiming that her husband, Joseph, was blinded, and later killed by moonshine, Mrs. Domilcella Anton has filed suit for $15,000 against Anthony Krupenski, a Dudley farmer, who, she alleges, sold Anton the liquor.

Attorney Joseph A. Love filed the suit under the law which gives a woman the right to sue for loss sustained by her husband or son or other male relative on whom she is dependent.

ACCUSED OF PLUNGING KNIFE IN SLEEPING CHUM

Donato Maso, 45, a lodger at No. 107 Church street, Lynn, was arrested today, charged with assault last night with intent to murder his chum, Jerry Mattera, who was asleep. Police allege they quarreled, and that after Mattera went to bed Maso plunged a jack-knife into his breast.

Mattera realized he had been stabbed, but it was not until he attempted to rise this morning that he found his wound was serious. He summoned a doctor. Maso was found in a Central avenue lodging house.

NEW INDICTMENT OF WARD URGED IN MURDER OF PETERS

White Plains, N. Y., July 25.—The extraordinary Grand Jury which reopened the investigation of the slaying of Clarence E. Peters of Haverhill, Mass., an ex-sailor, by Walter S. Ward, wealthy baker's son, today was reported to be receiving from Attorney-General Carl Sherman a plea for another murder indictment against Ward.

Mr. Sherman, who conducted the inquiry for the State after a previous murder indictment had been dismissed when the county prosecutor's office announced it was not ready to go to trial, was said to have called his last important witnesses before the jury when the dead man's parents came from Haverhill and testified.

The jury met shortly after 10 o'clock this morning and only one witness, whose identity was shrouded in mystery, was admitted.

MAYOR'S DRIVER GETS RESPITE

Disposal of charges against Edward Shay, Mayor Curley's chauffeur, accused of speeding and violation of automobile laws awaits the pleasure of Patrolman James J. Flynn of the Arlington police, who is away on vacation.

In East Cambridge court today Joseph T. Lyons, assistant corporation counsel of Boston was present to defend Shay, and Judge Stone was present to go ahead with the trial.

"Where's the cop?" asked somebody.

"Gosh." A sheepish sergeant made endpaper noises with digits on his skull. "He's on his vacation."

So the case was continued to August 20.

Shay was taking Mayor Curley and Mayor Quinn of Cambridge to Camp Devens when halted after a chase by Flynn. A summons followed.

COAL SHORTAGE IN WINTER, STATE SAYS

There is likely to be another shortage of hard coal this Winter.

Only one-half of what the people of this State need for the Winter can be dug out of the ground by September 1.

But don't rush into the market and try to fill up your bins with hard coal right away.

Buy some soft coal and save money and worry.

Under no circumstances can there be any justification for any increase in the price of hard coal by the dealers.

The above statements, predictions and advice were given today by Chairman Eugene C. Hultman of

NOTED GLUTTON NEAR DEATH; HIS 18TH STEIN WAS DOPED

Chicago, July 25.—For a year "Professor" Bengo has astonished onlookers by eating enormous quantities of food and drinking copious draughts. Today he is in a hospital near death, as a result of a trick played on him while giving an exhibition. Two men are held in jail.

Bengo had downed his seventeenth stein of beer, after dispatching a quantity of sausage and a half-dozen of eggs. Someone poured oil of mustard in the eighteenth stein. He drank the doctored beverage and collapsed.

IDENTITY OF RICH WOMEN IN "POISON PEN" CASE REVEALED

MAXWELL COURTED MANY

of Maxwell's victims are made known, the list will be like a directory of society, the stage and the arts.

SOCIETY WOMEN VICTIMS

Already the casualty list includes:

Mrs. Allan A. Ryan, wife of the Wall street trader.

Camille Segard, a member of the Danish Opera Company.

Marion Hildreth, New York "woman about town."

Mrs. Muriel Cridler, whose husband died as a result of the revelations attendant to his wife's indiscretions.

Mrs. Beatrice Gallatin, wife of Albert Gallatin, society man.

Phoebe Hunt, motion picture actress.

Eva Gauthier, a singer.

An unnamed member of the ballet of the Metropolitan opera.

Mrs. George Huhn of New York City, who introduced Maxwell to Mrs. Ryan.

Coincident with the expose of the "poison pen" love filibuster, it is revealed that he is 53 years old, was born in Glasgow, Scotland, and began his career as a lowly piano tuner. The district attorney claims that Maxwell's contention that he is a son of Sir William Maxwell of Gothessy, Scotland, is pure bunk. The three Sir William Maxwells in Burke's peerage are all childless.

POSED AS BACHELOR

aged in his love affairs, he posed as a bachelor, while his wife and daughter, helpless, looked on.

District Attorney Malone gives the following outline of the affairs of Maxwell:

CAMILLE SEGARD: She was the first woman of any prominence whose name has been linked with that of Maxwell. Mlle. Segard met the urbane dilettante while she was singing with the Danish Opera Company, and lived with him for several years at the Hotel Woodward. Even while he lived with her, Maxwell was pursuing romances elsewhere, and, ly thereafter a letter was received when she found out about it, she left by her husband describing in minute him and married a man named Lane, then living in Paris.

MARION HILDRETH: She was the successor to the Segard girl, and is said to have been the recipient of the following letter, anonymous, dated July 26, 1920: "It is a long 'Lane' freferring to the man Mlle. Segard married and by the way, that reminds us of your dirty work, Poor Camille—" This letter was addressed also to Maxwell himself, who in almost all the cases received a letter similar to that received by the husbands and friends of the women in his career.

MRS. MURIEL CRIDLER: The affair with Mrs. Cridler was broken short when her husband let his friends read some of the scorching and scandalous letters he received. An exposure of the situation resulted in Cridler's death. Shortly thereafter Mrs. Cridler underwent an operation in Baltimore.

SENT ANNUAL REMINDER

MRS. BEATRICE GALLATIN: She is said to have supplanted Mrs. Cridler. It was Albert Gallatin, her husband, who first made charges against Maxwell as a poison penman four years ago. The charges were dropped. Before the grand jury Mrs. Gallatin admitted that on the afternoon of February 23, 1918, she visited Maxwell's apartment. Short detail the incidents of that afternoon. And thereafter on every February 25th Mr. Gallatin received an anniversary reminder of the adventure.

PHOEBE HUNT: This girl was next on the list. She met Maxwell, Maloney says, when she was playing in a picture called "The Grim Comedian," with Miss Hunt. Maxwell is said to have gone to Mexico City, and thence to various other sections of the Southwest.

THE OPERA BALLET GIRL: This unnamed girl entered into the life of Maxwell for a brief period, but the affair was hectic. She dined with him, spent evenings in his apartment and the very night before Maxwell sailed to rejoin Mrs. Ryan in Paris they had dinner together in his gorgeous suite.

ROMANCE ON SHIPBOARD

MRS. GEORGE HUHN: Little is known of Mrs. Huhn except that she had an apartment on Park avenue. She was a friend of Mrs. Ryan, and it was Mrs. Huhn who introduced Maxwell to Mrs. Ryan while all three were passengers aboard the Mauretania bound for Europe.

MRS. ALLAN RYAN: The acquaintance began on the Mauretania progressed rapidly during the trip, Maloney states. They stayed together in London and Paris and took a trip to Lake Como and Milan. They exchanged telegrams and radios when separated.

Some of these radios have been introduced as evidence.

"I have been counting the hours," Maxwell radioed Mrs. Ryan just before he sailed to rejoin her in Paris.

"I will be there to meet you, love," was her reply.

Just before the ship bearing Maxwell neared its port on the other side of the Atlantic, he is said to have received a radio from Mrs. Ryan which read:

"If only you had been the father of my children."

The affair of Maxwell with Mrs. Ryan reached New England last Summer, when Mrs. Ryan came to York Harbor, Me. It is alleged that Maxwell made two trips to York Harbor, spending a couple of weeks each trip. While he was in New York during the time Mrs. Ryan stayed at York Beach, he was in daily communication with her by telephone.

The district attorney points out in his brief that these messages are included in thirteen allegations of fact contained in scurrilous letters received by Allan Ryan.

HIS OTHER VICTIMS

Mr. Maloney believes that Maxwell's tendency to write the letters is due to a psychopathic twist to the man's character. He says:

"Maxwell has a curious mental twist and derives a morbid sex pleasure from writing and sending the letters."

"After his friendship with a particular woman, Mr. Maloney continues, "the husband and friends of the woman would receive letters concerning the relationship between herself and Maxwell. This woman would then drop out and a new woman would appear. With each new acquaintance a new set of letters would be circulated. Each set emanated from the same source and contained facts and details that no person other than Maxwell could possibly know."

Already nine women are revealed as having been drawn in by the tentacles of New York's Devil Fish. The district attorney says there are seven more, many of them wives of respected business and professional men.

Who are they? Where will the trail of the octopus lead?

BOY FINDS AIR RIFLE, SHOOTS LAD IN HEAD

Fred Cafolo, eight years old, of No. 66 Michigan avenue, Lynn, was picking flowers near his home, George Sebella, fourteen, of No. 57 Michigan avenue, air-rifle in hand, came along.

"Duck!" shouted George, as he aimed the rifle at Fred's head. Fred, not realizing the full import of the summons, stood upright. The rifle clicked and Fred fell, with a tiny bullet in his head.

Today the little boy is lying in the hospital, in a serious condition, but pleading with the police to be "easy on George." The ball imbedded itself in the child's head, over the right eye, over the temple.

According to the police, the Sebella boy had been frightening the children of the neighborhood by shooting off the rifle close to them, telling them to "duck." They all "ducked" and no one was hurt. Then, the police say, George aided little Fred picking the flowers. He tried the same tactics on the little fellow. But Fred failed to "duck."

Young Sebella told the police that he found the rifle in a coal bin. He is heartbroken over the affair. The police are checking up Sebella's story. No arrests have been made.

aroused by the hubbub incident to the break, and for a time it was feared it would be necessary to order them to vacate the building.

In order to stop the flood it was necessary for the water department to shut off ten different gates. Four of these are thirty-inch valves, requiring 250 turns each to close.

The damage to the Elevated property will be heavy and the tieup on the lines entering there will continue until tomorrow at least, it is expected.

WOMAN FAINTS AT WHEEL AFTER DRIVING 101 HOURS

Houston, Tex., July 25.—R. E. Settle won the automobile driving marathon contest at the Gulf Coast Speedway when at 1:10 o'clock this morning he had been at the wheel 101 hours and 10 minutes. His victory came when Mrs. Mabel Lowe, the only remaining competitor of thirteen who started, fainted at the wheel in her automobile at 1:02 a. m.

As the other contestants began to drop out, the crowd chose Mrs. Lowe as its favorite, but switched its sympathy when it became known that Settle sought the prize to finance a honeymoon trip. Settle's motorcar carried no speedometer, but it is estimated he drove 1,800 miles. Mrs. Lowe made something less.

Washington, July 25 (I.N.S.)—Physicians will be compelled to endure the Volstead law curb as to quantity and frequency of liquor prescriptions for six months longer, at least, as the Supreme Court probably will not pass finally upon the question before the beginning of another year.

DEITRICK RAPS SHUTDOWN OF SHOP FOR BLIND

State action in closing the broom, rug and mop shops in Cambridge which provided work and an income for eighty blind men and women, today was denounced as "nothing less than an outrage," by former Congressman Frederick S. Deitrick, organizer and president of the Blind and Crippled Union.

"The shop was thoroughly mismanaged by McKeever, the blind superintendent, and by Director Hayes, both of whom ran the place helter-skelter into the ground and then got out when they saw it would be closed as a result of their mismanagement," said Mr. Deitrick. "But that was no reason why the State should throw the others out.

"On the one hand we have the State closing this place and on the other we have the social uplifter driving the blind and cripples off the street. The blind must starve, go to the poorhouse or beg. I would beg first.

A delegation of blind people will be received by Governor Cox tomorrow afternoon to hear them protest against the action for which Chairman Homer Loring of the State Department of Administration, Robert I. Bramhall, the new Director of the Blind and the Commission for the Blind were responsible.

Loring said the place was $62,000 in debt.

Peace, Sweetness, Light. Won't Pay, Can't Pay. It's a Law, But Bad Law. Unimportant Earthquake.

—By Arthur Brisbane—

(Copyright, 1923, by Star Company)

SPEAKING OF PEACE, sweetness and light, you notice that our neighbor, the Argentine Republic, plans to spend more than $147,000,000 for an army this year.

Lloyd George says England has just signed with Turkey the most humiliating "peace treaty that England ever signed.

The treaty allows ships of all nations to go through the Dardanelles. That isn't important. The important thing is, what kind of a fleet will Russia one day send out through the Dardanelles—ships on the water, submarines under the water, flying machines above the water.

GEORGE M. REYNOLDS, wise Chicago banker, returns from Europe saying France won't pay her debt to the United States. That's true. France won't, for the reason, among others, that she couldn't if she wanted to.

She couldn't pay us four or five billions, interest excluded, and pay the same amount to England without taxing her people as heavily as the English and the American people are taxed.

The French won't stand that kind of taxation; they don't like it. And when they don't LIKE a thing, they have a way of making their government know they don't like it. We haven't that here.

A CHICAGO JUDGE upholds the right of any man to disinherit his wife and children. That is the law, but it's bad law.

If a man has a dog the law will compel him to feed that dog, although the man isn't the dog's father.

What a man must do for his dog, he should be compelled to do for his children. Napoleon knew it. Frenchmen are not allowed to disinherit children that they have created, unless for definite, good reasons.

If a man's children are worth while, he should be proud not to neglect them. If they are worthless, his is the fault, for he made them, and he should be compelled to support them.

EARTHQUAKE rumblings in California, with nobody killed, are treated in Eastern newspapers as a combination of the World War and the destruction of Pompeii. California's quakes are not nearly as dangerous as floods and lightning in the East, and don't collect one-tenth as many lives.

Out there the earth is just settling down, getting ready to support and hold up about fifty million more human beings.

In Tokio, by the way, there were sixty earthquake shocks, one after the other, within two weeks, and nobody paid any attention to that—wisely, for they didn't amount to anything.

STEINACH, BRILLIANT surgeon of Vienna, has undoubtedly changed old men into apparently young men by gland transplanting, and also, according to good authority, has made a person aged twenty suddenly become sixty in appearance.

As between the two, the wise man would say, "If you must change me, make me older. Anything but a return to youth and all its foolishness."

"THE GREAT EMPIRE of China is crumbling. Anarchy is growing, the opium traffic is opened up wide for the sake of revenue."

Conditions are bad, but China has always been crumbling more or less, like the great Chinese wall, that began crumbling when it was finished.

Like the dinosaur of old that died off because of its very bigness, China seems too big to manage herself. That's bad for China, fortunate, perhaps, for the rest of the world. If China developed a genius able to control the five or six hundred million Chinese, able to feed and raise the babies to swell the nation to fifteen hundred millions, more than all the other peoples on the earth combined, it would be dangerous for the others.

THE BAPTIST WORLD ALLIANCE congress at Stockholm is told that only Christianity, spread everywhere, will prevent wars.

Christianity would prevent wars if those in power paid any attention to Christianity's teachings. But the seven years' war, the thirty years' war, the hundred years' war, among ten thousand other wars, were all perfectly good Christian wars. And there are plenty more to come.

BACK BAY GIRL IS HELD AS BURGLAR

Josephine Rivera of No. 97 Stephen street, Back Bay, was today in Municipal Court charged with breaking and entering and larceny.

Pending further investigation, she was held in $2000 for appearance August 20.

Josephine, arresting officers charge, burgled her way into the tailor shop of Jacon Gitlin at No. 355 Boylston street, and lugged away $900 worth of loot.

Or if Josephine didn't do the actual burglary, the police say she came into possession of the stolen articles.

She was taken in when she went to 8 St. Stephen street tailor shop to get a dress she had left to have altered, and which had been identified by Gitlin as one stolen from his place.

The police were inclined to think she was connected with Jack Mancovitz, alias Jack Mann, arrested near her home on a charge of breaking and entering.

Mancovitz, they say, is responsible for fifteen burglaries, mostly in Roxbury. When arrested he is alleged to have been wearing a ring stolen from the home of Louis Goldstein of No. 15 Walnut street, Roxbury.

Other places he is said to have robbed are the home of Joseph White, Fayston street, a house on Crawford street, another at 65 Lawrence avenue and one at No. 103 Homestead street.

When he was arraigned today before Judge Hayden in Roxbury Court, Inspectors Mulry and Mitchell served an indictment warrant containing sixteen counts and a default warrant charging receiving stolen property. Mancovitz was then held in $30,000.

American Seeks Those Who Saw "Gang" Fight

On Tuesday morning, July 17, a street fight occurred near the corner of Broadway and Dorchester street, between the police and members of one of South Boston's so-called "gangs." The trouble started about 11:30 when a member of the gang, according to the police, swore at one of the officers. The officer started to put him under arrest and finally, after a stiff tussle, succeeded in subduing him.

A large crowd, attracted by the excitement, followed the officers and their prisoner to the patrol box at Broadway and Dorchester street, where they were augmented by others just emerging from the South Boston District Court. The officers formed a square about their prisoner and held him until the wagon arrived from Station 12.

The American wishes to hear from anyone who was present and saw what happened while the officers were waiting for the wagon at the patrol box at the corner of Broadway and Dorchester street. All such communications will be regarded as strictly confidential.

GIRL CALLS 'SHEIK' BLACKMAILER

Seize Payroll Bandit Suspects

BLACKMAIL PLANNED BY "SHEIK"

New York, July 25.—A few months prior to his sensational elopement with Mrs. Nellie Adele Browning, who jilted her heart-broken millionaire husband, suave Charles Henry Wilen plotted to blackmail her, says an affidavit signed by a fair young victim of the dental Sheik's Jekyll-Hyde advances.

Identity of this girl will not be revealed until she starts an intended suit for recovering of damages from Wilen and a heart balm action against Mrs. Browning.

The affidavit recites in detail how the girl was urged by the man she loved to sink to the lowest depths in order to keep his affection.

INNOCENCE DECEIVED

In substance the affidavit says Wilen met her two years ago in a Greenwich Village tea room where she had gone slumming for the first time. She was sixteen, pretty, and innocent.

Wilen, after six months' ardent courting, finally promised to wed her. She believed him.

Shortly afterward the girl faced a crucial point in her new-found life. The dental Sheik tried to help her—according to his own code—but did not make good his marriage promise.

The child-woman, eyes now opened to the real measure of her handsome, gay Lothario, could not break away, however. He was still her Romeo, she could forgive his faults. Anyway, there was hope that he would reform.

Finally came the nervest proposal—the sale of a soul.

A furious scene followed her refusal. But he glibly apologized and—

Then Mrs. Browning came into the girl's life. The Dental Sheik told her a wealthy woman had capitulated to him and that there was a wonderful opportunity to work a badger game, which, if successful, would make them both rich.

REFUSES TO SELL SOUL

In the role of the jilted sweetheart, according to the affidavit, the girl was to call on Mrs. Browning and threaten an expose if the millionaire's wife refused to quickly settle her heart balm.

The girl, realizing she faced a showdown, carefully weighed her move for Wilen before deciding he owed far too much from her. She turned down his plan flatly and subsequently Wilen melted out of her life.

"I want the world to know the truth about this scoundrel and deceiver," the girl said as she signed the affidavit. "He ruined the best part of my life—and I will get vengeance."

Additional details, casting a new light on the Wilen-Browning elopement deal with the Dental Sheik's Greenwich Village apartment, his reported adoption by a wealthy French woman and a love nest he maintained in Twenty-eighth street, near Fourth Avenue.

LIFE OF TRIANGLES

The dentist verged on eviction from his apartment on the top floor at 294 West Eleventh street when he eloped with Mrs. Browning. He lived there six weeks and intimate friends say he boasted that his wealthy sweetheart paid the rent.

Mrs. Browning, an informant said, visited him at the apartment every afternoon.

He entertained a dozen other girls, who, however, would vanish politely when Mrs. Browning appeared," a reporter was told.

"About the middle of last June neighbors protested about his noisy parties and the next day Wilen was asked to move."

That portion of the Sheik's past dealing with his adontion is another story which Wilen told himself.

While a dentist soldier in France during the World War he met a wealthy Frenchwoman described as sixty, sorry-looking, feeble and a nymphomess.

She liked the suave, handsome talker and adopted him. Subsequently Wilen, discharged from the ser-

Valentino Holds Up Trousers With Galluses

New York, July 25.—It may ruin many a flapper's romantic dreams, but how do you suppose a sheik keeps up his pants?

Suspenders! Ordinarily, tan, six-button galluses such as the fireman wear!

Two ship news reporters swooned over the side of the Aquitania, strong men prayed and women screamed when Rudolph Guglielmi, who much prefers to be known as Rodolph Valentino, permitted a breeze to flip back his coat and reveal the secret.

2 CAUGHT IN LOWELL AUTO

Lowell, July 25.—Robert A. Stephenson, twenty-three years old, No. 624 Arsenal street, Watertown, and Stephen Stankusnas, twenty-one years old, No. 279 Broadway, Cambridge, were arrested here, suspected of being implicated in the $3,900 payroll robbery from the Penn Metal Company in Cambridge, a few days ago.

The two men were arrested by State Troopers Walter L. Kivlan and Charles Jobert, on Merrimac street, near Tilden street, this city, when the officers became suspicious of the automobile in which the two men were riding.

AUTO PLATE CLUE.

Cambridge police notified all New England police authorities to watch for an automobile bearing Massachusetts registration plate No. 119-414. That was the number of the car the two alleged bandits were in at the time of their capture.

The two men were arraigned in Lowell District Court and held for the arrival of Cambridge police.

DENY COMPLICITY.

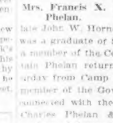

Both denied having any part in the Cambridge payroll robbery. They said they had been camping at Crosshill Camp on Lake View Point, Dracut, and that they had been there at the time of the robbery.

Last Saturday two youths, who drove up in a stolen automobile, entered the office of the Penn Metal Company on Concord street, Cambridge, and, at the point of revolvers, robbed the paymaster.

As they flew to their automobile manned by a third youth, the paymaster opened fire, wounding one of the trio, it is believed. The robbery took place during afternoon business hours.

NOVA SCOTIA MINE STRIKE COLLAPSES

Atlantic City, July 25. (I.N.S.)—John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, announced today the complete collapse of the unauthorized miners' strike in Nova Scotia bituminous fields. Lewis made public a telegram from the provisional district president, Silby Barrett, announcing that the deposed officers of District 25 (Nova Scotia) had surrendered their offices and all money, books, and other property of the district, the charter of which was revoked last week by Lewis, who had charged Bolshevism in the conduct of the district's affairs. The telegram from Barrett also stated the striking miners were returning to work.

TRAIL ASSAILANT OF MELROSE GIRL

Police are looking for dark complexioned man who drove Chevrolet sedan. He is believed to be the attacker of the girl.

Grace Drew, victim of attack. Walter Lynch, who found girl, and scene of attack at Lily Pond.

Police of every city and town of Massachusetts have been asked to aid in the search for a dark complexioned, black haired young man, believed to be the one who brutally attacked eight-year-old Grace Drew of Melrose and then left her unconscious in the bushes by Lily Pond, Saugus.

A suspect was detained by the Melrose police. He answered a description of the assailant and was driving a Chevrolet sedan. The man, whose name was withheld, was released after an hour's grilling and when he furnished a complete alibi.

Fingers prints on the child's throat have developed, according to physicians at Melrose Hospital. That leads the police to believe that the kidnaper sought to stifle her cries by choking her to death.

Doctors said it would be two weeks before she could leave the hospital.

STATE WARNS OF ANOTHER COAL SHORTAGE NEXT WINTER

CONSUMERS ADVISED HOW TO ACT

the Commission on the Necessaries of Life in a summary of coal conditions which he sent out, for benefit of the people, to the mayors of cities and selectmen of towns.

Mr. Bultman adds one curious fact. It is said no matter how much of a shortage there may be, the coal speculators, who charge the highest prices, always seem to have enough on hand. His statement carries the intimation they are in collusion with the big coal companies.

Mr. Bultman said:

"Whether or not there will be any interference with the production of anthracite on April 1 can not now be definitely foretold. Therefore, at this time, I beg to advise you of the conditions found to exist in regard to the domestic fuel situation in Massachusetts.

DO NOT BUY ALL NOW.

"Only about one-half of the anthracite needed for the whole of next Winter can be mined before September 1. There is nothing in the organization of the anthracite industry which would warrant the belief that an increase in the present high prices would result in more coal being mined between now and Sept. 1.

"People who wish to protect themselves at the present time as well as economize on their fuel bills should not attempt to obtain an entire year's supply of anthracite. Such consumers should provide themselves with one-half of next Winter's fuel supply in anthracite and one-half in low volatile run-of-mine bituminous coal, or with an entire supply of domestic sizes of low volatile bituminous coal.

"The general distribution of about 90 per cent. of the production is claimed to be based on allotments made to retail dealers in the coal year, April 1, 1922, to March 31, 1923. Less than 10 per cent of the total production is mined by so-called "independent" operators who sell in the auction market. It is a curious fact, however, that in times of great demand the jobbers apparently have no difficulty in securing a large supply of anthracite to sell at high prices.

"Anthracite transportation has been only slightly affected by temporary embargoes on the railroad this Spring. There has been no car shortage in the anthracite fields.

SITUATION COMPLICATED.

Local distribution of domestic anthracite by the retail dealers has, of course, been limited to the amount and sizes of coal they could get. Anthracite which has been delivered is in the cellars of those who had the desire to obtain it and the money to pay for it. Duplication of orders, desire on the part of retailers to get customers away from other dealers and the insistent demand by the householders upon dealers to put in a full year's supply of domestic anthracite at once, have complicated the situation.

"The latest comparative receipts and stocks of domestic anthracite, compiled by this office, from reports of retail dealers in Massachusetts, show:

	1921	1923
On hand April 1, tons	866,029	181,887
Plus receipts, April, May and June	1,471,062	1,823,796
Minus on hand July 1	972,560	801,049
Equals deliveries (3mos.)	1,366,521	1,344,634

Deliveries in the coal year April 1, 1921, to March 31, 1922, totaled 5,243,415 net tons.

"It should be noted that the above table shows the total stocks on hand in the dealers' yards on July 1st have increased since April 1st by nearly 100 per cent., in spite of the insistent demand of consumers.

DISTRIBUTION "SPOTTY."

"At the present rate of receipts we should receive a total of about 1,000,000 net tons of domestic anthracite in July and August. It is, therefore, evident that Massachusetts cannot physically receive more than one-half of its year's requirements of anthracite before September 1st. The distribution of hard coal within Massachusetts so far this year has been spotty. Some communities have received more than their proportion at share of the year's supply, while others as yet have not received a propey proportion. This office is calling the attention of shippers of anthracite to these discrepancies.

"Bituminous coal is easy to obtain at present in unlimited quantities due to its large production. High grade low volatile bituminous coal is today selling at the mine for $5.00 per ton, less than even the so-called "Company" anthracite of domestic sizes, and from $9 to $10 a ton less than a present auction price of "Independent" anthracite.

RED TAPE KEEPS FAMILY FROM CHELSEA MAN

Red tape threatens to keep from Joseph Matusoff, Chelsea cobbler, the wife and 6 children he has not seen for some 10 years.

He has prepared a home for them but they are now held at the immigration station at Ellis Island, New York, the gates of the promised land slammed in their faces. The quota for July has been filled and unless the authorities are able to snip off yards of red tape, they must go back to Russia.

They have already been ordered deported but Matusoff has filed an appeal with E. J. Henning, First Assistant Secretary of Labor and a request to have them admitted in the August quota.

Ten years ago Joseph Matusoff came to America and settled in Malden, opening a cobbler shop, to earn enough money to bring his family here. He did well and later moved to Chelsea, starting a larger shop at 79 Third street.

When the war broke out he was about able to send for his family but during the wartime chaos lost track of them completely. Only a few months ago he succeeded in locating them again.

Matusoff has a flat already furnished and planned to send Hyman, 17 years old, his eldest son to a good school. The other children are Minnie, 15, Morris 14, Dora, 12, Lazarus, 11, and Bailey, 9.

ALLEGED BOOZE RUNNER CAUGHT AT SALOON DOOR

Joseph Lee of No. 28 Morrill street, Dorchester, has been suspected by the police of running rum in his automobile to a saloon near C and Fourth street, South Boston. Three liquor sleuths were stationed near the establishment to watch. Lee drove up in his automobile, the police say, carrying a five-gallon can, and approached the saloon. As he neared the establishment he spied the officers. He hastened to enter the establishment, but the foot of the proprietor of the saloon ejected him. Lee, thus trapped, fell into the arms of the waiting officers. Twelve gallons of liquor were found in the automobile.

DOCTOR REGRETS HE NEVER HAD 'WILD PARTIES' WITH WOMEN

WISHES HE WAS REAL 'SHEIK'

Wife "Old Enough to Know Better," His Comment On Raid

"I only wish I WERE a devil with the women! I wish I were! Wish I'd had some of these wild times with women that my wife says I had——"

Shaking his head with apparent regret, Dr. Abraham S. Morris, city physician of Haverhill, arrested with Miss Alice Mansfield, pretty Haverhill nurse, in a raid instigated by his wife, thus denied being the successful "Sheik" she described.

"You know—I really haven't been around with women at all," declared the youthful physician. "I really wish, now, that I had mixed with the world more, and with women, and I'd know more about 'em today.

DOUBTS MENTALITY.

"As a matter of fact, though, I don't believe the girls and the women of today are really 'all there,' so to speak. I honestly don't think they're mentally at par value.

"Of course"—he added smilingly graciously, "the women can turn right around and say that about the men, or about me.

"A thief in a crowd is always the first to yell 'Stop! Thief!' in another direction. And when the crowd's attention is thus diverted, he makes his getaway," he continued.

"That's what a friend said to me the other night, in speaking of my wife's raid upon my house. It's simply the old psychology of getting in the first wallop, yourself."

"Mrs. Morris has a wonderful personality and there are times when she's a wonderful woman, but she's old enough to know better than to do anything like this. I'm not going to say anything about her, but you can say any of the neighbors around here about my wife.

"Even our children could tell you how my wife always instructs them to call her 'Helen.' She's not 'Mamma' when people are around; she's just a big sister, or something.

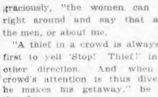

ON OWN FEET.

"My wife's people are well-to-do, but I've stood on my own feet ever since I've been able.

"Miss Mansfield is out of the State and will remain there until the trial next month. The poor girl is beside herself over this business. The doctors in Haverhill will vouch for Miss Mansfield's competency, however, and her integrity is above question."

CHILDREN MOURN FOR STOLEN DOG

BROOKHARDT STILL WAITS HUGHES' REPLY

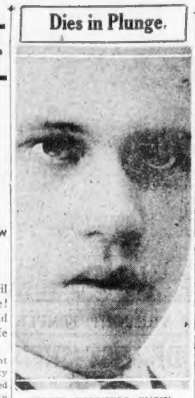

Washington, Iowa, July 25.—Senator Smith W. Brookhart declares that Secretary Hughes' letter to Samuel Gompers on the Russian situation is in no sense an answer to information he presented to the secretary on his recent return from Europe.

"Some of the propositions in the letter to Mr. Gompers were discussed by us, but I simply presented to him the Russian view as it was given to me," Senator Brookhart said. "For instance, upon the question of propaganda the Russians say that we have put out ten times more of it against them than they ever have against us, and recognition would end it both ways."

LIEUT. KITCHELL SNOW

FLIER FALLS TO DEATH IN HARBOR

An Army air pilot was killed and two passengers, one a boy, were gravely injured in the second fatal airplane crash from the Army aviation field at Jeffries Point within less than a week.

Lieutenant Kitchell Snow, 25 years old, No. 117 Bay State road, attached to the Aero Division of the Massachusetts National Guard, was instantly killed when his new airplane fell in the mud flats off the Army aviation field at Jeffries Point, East Boston.

J. W. McCloud

Sergeant Os. car LeCain, No. 11 Trull street, Somerville, a passenger in Snow's plane, was seriously bruised and lacerated about the head, body, arms and legs. He was unconscious when extricated from the wreckage. It is believed he will recover.

Howard Carkin, twelve years old, of North Chelmsford, a cousin of LeCain's, was extensively cut and bruised. He was semi-conscious when extricated from the wreckage.

John W. McCloud, No. 11 Samson court, East Boston, a helper at the East Boston Aerial Base, witnessed the accident, and extricated the bodies from the wreckage.

According to McCloud, Snow had been in the air about fifteen minutes, giving young Carkin a ride. Although known as an expert "stunt" flyer, Snow had confined himself to "straight" flying, and had at no time gone out of sight of the Aero Base.

The machine was circling in a vertical bank, preparatory to landing, when McCloud detected something wrong in the sound of Snow's motor, and looked up just as the motor went dead.

Snow tried to volplane, but could not get out of the vertical bank in time. Instead, the machine side-slipped, and fell into a nose dive at an altitude of approximately 200 feet.

The wreckage of the plane was almost half buried in the mud flat just off the runway of the flying field.

Lieutenant Snow was the son of Frederick Snow, of law firm of Gaston, Snow & Hunt.

He was a World War veteran, and was decorated with the Croix de Guerre by the French Government for bravery while under fire of anti-air craft guns when he, together with six other planes, were scouting behind the German lines. He was a Harvard man.

REMOVE LAST OBSTACLE TO RELEASE OF HOBBS, MODERN 'DREYFUS'

JULIUS. O'CONNOR, TELEPHONE STRIKE LEADER, ADDRESSING MASS MEETING OF GIRL OPERATORS IN TREMONT TEMPLE

OPPOSITION TO PARDON IS DEAD

Story of Girl Whom He Was Convicted of Attacking Is Proven False

Haverhill, July 25—The last possible obstacle, from a legal viewpoint, to the immediate release of Henry Hilliard Hobbs, principal in New England's "Dreyfus Case," was removed today.

Hobbs is serving a prison term of ten to fifteen years for an alleged attack upon a marlboro high school girl.

From the girl herself (whose name is withheld to protect her reputation) came an admission that Hobbs did NOT invade her private bedroom, as was charged at the trial.

The girl and her mother, Mrs. Ethel G. Barnes, thirty-six, a divorcee, lived at Hobbs' farm at Atkinson, N. H. At the trial Mrs. Barnes not only disputed the story of her daughter, but did everything in her power to save a man she says was "railroaded to prison."

HAS SERVED THREE YEARS.

Hobbs has served three years for a crime the alleged victim now says never was committed.

The girl's grandmother, who swore out the warrant for Hobbs' arrest, told the Boston American she would not oppose a pardon for him.

Dr. Charles H. Merrill, who examined the girl shortly after the alleged crime has informed this newspaper she showed no evidence of an attack. Dr. Merrill was the family physician of the grandparents of the girl, and was not engaged by Hobbs at the time.

In view of these indisputable facts, the aged parents of Hobbs, who was their sole support, are confident a pardon will be granted him.

The testimony at the trial showed that Mrs. Barnes and Hobbs were partners in a lunch cart enterprise at Haverhill. In addition, the mother was housekeeper at the Hobbs farm at Atchison.

WAS "NICE" TO HER.

The girl testified that when she went from the home of her grandparents to visit her mother at Atkinson, Hobbs was "terribly nice to me." She said he frequently kissed her and put his arms about her. But she was vague about specific dates and places.

It was the contention of the defence that Hobbs' show of affection for the daughter was due to his interest in the mother.

There are many cases on record of men who have been sent to prison on unsubstantial charges of girls. Psychologists point out that it is a phase of adolescence to imagine things. In the Hobbs case those who have investigated are positive the girl mistook Hobbs' fatherly interest in her for something personal.

Hobbs was sent to prison for a specific crime.

All the evidence that has been unearthed since then proves that he did not commit that crime.

He has already paid for the girl's unsubstantial accusations during and proceeding the trial with three years of his life.

Here Are Facts in New England's Dreyfus Case

Harry Hilliard Hobbs of Atkinson, N. H., is serving a term of from ten to fifteen years in prison on a charge of attacking a Marlboro school-girl.

The physician engaged by the family of the girl following the alleged attack insists there was no physical evidence of a crime.

The mother of the girl went on the stand and testified that her daughter had admitted to her there was no attack.

The girl herself now admits Hobbs did not invade her private bedroom.

Yet Hobbs remains in prison.

How long will it be before attention is paid the petition for a pardon for Hobbs, started by his aged parents?

CARRIERS CAN DRESS FOR HOT WEATHER

Washington, July 25.—A further concession to the fact that warm weather frequently is uncomfortable has been made by Postmaster General New. Carriers were authorized in a ruling to wear shirts, preferably of light gray or white, and belts, instead of heavier blouses or shirt vests. At one time carriers were required to wear coats and vests regardless of the temperature.

MAYOR HOLDS PHONE STRIKE CONFERENCE

Mayor Curley and George H. Dresser, general manager of the New England Telephone & Telegraph Company, conferred on the operators' strike in City Hall.

Neither would say what had transpired at the conference. The Mayor is known to have held several conferences with the hope of restoring normal telephone service.

It is understood one of the questions discussed in the Mayor's conference was the restoration to their former positions of striking operators. This, according to the strikers, is now the key to the strike settlement situation.

Reports that the State Board of Arbitration and Conciliation is to make public today a statement giving figures in the telephone operators' strike, and requesting the strikers to return to work, are being circulated in Boston labor circles.

Local 1A, the old Boston operators' union, will fight for the preservation of that organization on the floor of the convention of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, to be held in Montreal in August, it has been learned.

District Manager J. P. Harzell of the Waltham exchange of the New England Telephone & Telegraph Company will appear in the Waltham District Court today to answer a complaint of having failed to mention in his advertisements for operators to take the places of striking phone girls that labor trouble existed at the exchange.

WOMAN SAVES LIVES OF 11 IN SALEM TENEMENT FIRE

Salem, July 25—Eleven persons owe their lives to the quick action of Mrs. Caroline Berthioune of No. 58 Winthrop street, South Salem section, who today groped her way through smoke and flames to arouse sleeping occupants of the house.

Mrs. Berthioune, who, with her sons, Edward and Emile, occupies the upper floor of the three-apartment structure, heard flames in a closet near her room. She aroused her sons. Mrs. Berthioune then went to the apartment just below, awakening Mr. and Mrs. Myers and others in the building.

A garden hose was used to keep the fire in check until the firemen arrived. The loss was $1,000. The cause of the fire is not known.

LLOYD GEORGE ACCUSES POINCAIRE OF DISTORTION

Bristol, Eng., July 25. (I.N.S.)—"The present outlook in Europe is enough to induce despair in the stoutest hearts," declared former Premier David Lloyd George in a speech here today. He continued:

"I wish Premier Poincare of France would not make speeches on Sunday.

"It is scarcely the thing to choose that day to unscrew the cylinders of his carefully distilled hatred. It is a thing which produces suspicion and anger among all nations."

Lloyd George charged some of his statements had been wilfully distorted by the French Premier.

5 INJURED AS AUTO HITS POLE IN BILLERICA

Five persons narrowly escaped death or serious injury when their touring car skidded on the wet highway near Billerica cemetery today. The machine crashed into an electric light pole.

Charles Mann, No. 221 Pleasant street, Watertown, driver of the car, was the most seriously hurt. His mouth was cut and he suffered other injuries.

His four companions all received minor cuts and bruises. They were, A. H. Hill, No. 52 Highland avenue, Somerville; J. F. Sulley, No. 32 Howard street, Cambridge; J. P. Doherty, No. 86 Bunker Hill street, Charlestown, and W. S. Shaw, No. 32 Fourth street, Medford.

All were treated at the Lexington police station by Dr. Henry C. Valentine.

DENTIST 'SHEIK' IS CALLED BLACKMAILER BY GIRL

vice, led a high life while with her. To prove this he had a snapshot of himself and the King of Serbia, taken at Monte Carlo.

But, so the story goes, there was a clash over another woman—there always seemed to be triangles in Wilen's life—and the wealthy benefactress spurned Wilen from that time on.

Miss Renee Shapiro, one of many young women whom Wilen wooed, said the Sheik termed his adventures while the adopted son "the softest snap he ever had."

Extracts from the "Dental Sheik's" love letters to Miss Shapiro follow:

Monte Carlo, Dec. 1922.

Dear Baby—Of course, I want you. But for the present and, perhaps for quite a while, I've got just enough to get by on. You and Harry ought to hatch up some way to get out here. It's worth trying, really. Take a chance. That's what I did.

(The "Harry" mentioned is Harry Wolsher, Dr. Wilen's pal.)

Paris

I suppose, Baby, that you'll put all this down as bunk. But the truth is that I am beginning to miss you awfully.

Really, Ain-geli, I wish you were here. The more I wish the madder I get. See what you can do, won't you, kidlets? Once over, I'll manage the rest.

Miss Shapiro appears to be about sixteen, with wide innocent eyes. This is her story:

"I was engaged to maryr Wilen. He told me he did not love Mrs. Browning and she was only a good friend because she had money. He told me that he planned to have me go to Mrs. Browning and tell her that I had seen her with him and that I was his fiancee and that I was going to tell Mr. Browning all about it, and then Wilen figured out that Mrs. Browning would become frightened and run to him for advice and he would tell her it was the best plan to pay me off to shut my mouth.

"Wilen had another plan, which was for me to meet Mr. Browning and then after a while, when I was with Browning, for Wilen to come in by surprise and to say that I was his wife, and that there was going to be trouble. And then Mr. Browning was to pay a large sum to keep it quiet."

4500 "INVADERS" CAPTURE NANTASKET AT AMERICAN'S OUTING

CHILDREN FIND JOY AT BEACH

All Tickets for Next Trip to Be Distributed at Boston American Building

"Forty-five hundred invaders capture Nantasket."

That is how they would put it in army language. Yes, 4,500 "invaders" did capture Nantasket and they held it all to themselves for a whole day.

The "invaders" comprised the Boston American's "army" of mothers and children on the third beach outing of the season. And when 4,500 kiddies and their mothers hit any one place at the same time, the whole world knows what is going on.

Three big boats of the Nantasket Beach Steamboat Company, the Rose Standish, Betty Alden and Mary Chilton were the "troopships" that carried the youngsters to the beach. The sail was not the least important and interesting part of the day.

SEE HARBOR WONDERS.

Six Red Cross nurses were on hand for emergencies and advice. The boys, naturally enough, kept the engineers on the boats busy answering questions. "What's that big thing do?" and "What d'yo call this?" were only a few of the questions.

But to get down to the beach.

Opposite Paragon Park the big trucks were drawn up. First there was the big milk truck of H. P. Hood Sons & Company, loaded down with bottles for each guest of the American. Then came a couple of trucks loaded with Hood's ice cream.

PICNICS ON BEACH.

The lines formed on either side of the trucks. The milk came first. Then the family picnics started. From suit-cases, handbags, paper bags and ordinary newspaper came the sandwiches and cakes. Mothers scooped the kiddies onto the sandy beach and they all gathered around.

By the time they had finished the line re-formed for the ice cream to top off the luncheons. The boys and girls got tops, as souvenirs from the H. P. Hood Company. And lollypops from Frank Archer, "daddy" of the Moxie Company.

Harry Luckman, who handed out the cakes given by the Berwick Cake Company, is glad he is a husky. For when a few thousand whooping kids all tried to get their cake at the same time, laughing and shoving, a smaller man would have found himself "licked." But Harry, with his good-natured smile, kept on handing out his cakes until his big truck was empty.

FUN AT PARAGON.

With the "eats" over, Paragon Park and Sagamore Baths were next on the list for "capture." And "a good job was done by all" on both places.

A great deal could be written of how the kiddies took Paragon Park to themselves. The little white ticket on their coats was all that was needed to secure quick attention from the park officials and attendants. For it was "Boston American Day" and no mistake.

Now looms up the fourth and LAST Outing.

Many little girls (at top) on the "Way to Dreamland." Left to right, Ruth MacFarland, Marjorie Killion, Louise and Alice MacFarland, Virginia and Georgianna Killion. MARGOT MOBERLEY WEDS "GENTLEMAN"

Portsmouth, N. H., July 25.—Miss Margaret J. Moberley, daughter of the late Thomas E. Moberley, a Toronto lawyer, and Roland E. Perrin, son of Rev. James Perrin of Victoria B. C., were married here at Christ Episcopal Church.

The couple filed their intentions in Boston last week and Miss Moberley created a sensation when she gave the occupation of her husband-to-be as a "gentleman." They had previously planned on coming here to be married by her uncle, but upon arriving here it was explained that their Boston license was not good here. Consequently a new license was taken out in this city and Judge Ernest L. Guptill of the Municipal Court waived the five-day law.

SUSPENDED COP TO BE GIVEN HEARING

Beverly, July 25.—Mayor George H. Whittemore announced today that he would give a hearing, on Monday night, in the aldermanic chamber, to Patrolman Edward F. Glidden, suspended by John E. Hayes, "shooting chief," who will be prosecutor. He charges Glidden did not patrol his beat properly. But Glidden asserts he was suspended because he had aroused the ire of the chief by giving information to newspaper men.

MARCONI TO RUN BRITISH WIRELESS

London, July 25.—The announcement of the postmaster general in the House of Commons that the government was abandoning its imperial wireless program and was turning it over to the Marconi Company, was bitterly assailed by Liberal and Labor members. They demand state ownership and operation sessions.

GERMAN POLICE SEIZE FRENCH COURIER

Berlin, July 25, (A.P.)—The Berlin newspapers today report German police have arrested a French courier, belonging to the French embassy in Berlin, in an express train near Yagna, on the edge of the Ruhr. Important documents intended for the commander of the French Ruhr army were seized, it is said.

Negotiations between the ministry of finance and the Reichsbank and other big banks for the issue of an internal loan on a gold basis have been consolidated. It will be for 20,000,000 to 25,000,000 gold marks, bearing interest at five per cent. and maturing in twelve years, repayable on the dollar basis at the rate quoted in New York. The smallest subscriptions permissible will be twenty-one gold marks equivalent to five dollars.

INQUEST FACTS TODAY IN VT. DEATH CASE

By HARRY A. BENWELL

Canaan, Vt., July 25.—Some time today a body of grim-faced men in the stuffy little parlor of the Canaan Hotel will end an inquest that has been going on for almost a week and the sole occupant of the Canaan "lock-up" is expected to be charged with murder in the first degree.

Then will the grim-faced men file out into the sunshine, step into their cars and return to their farming. Over the Canadian line groups will gather at the Lime House bar and for weeks discuss the possible fate of Ed Bunnell, father of five, who has been locked up since Job Cross, the village money lender, was shot to death two weeks back.

Job was a money lender as patient as the man of the Bible he was named after. He could wait years to foreclose a farm. He held a mortgage on Ed Bunnell's place and it was falling due.

On Thursday, July 12, Job went to Ed's place to collect. That night his battered old flivver was found abandoned on the road to Cole Hill. Alongside it was a pollw jug propped his rheumatic back against when he drove. The pillow was wet from a fall of rain.

Four days later when he was still missing a posse of 150 men was organized by Deputy Sheriff H. Elmer Marsh, and the woods by the abandoned car were entered and searched in vain.

They left the woods and decided to pursue the search along the North Canaan road. There on Thursday last they found Job's body.

A bullet had ploughed through the skull. The blood-clotted hole was made by a high-powered rifle bullet, the kind of a hole one finds in a fallen deer.

In the posse which located Job was Ed Bunnell. Somebody volunteered the information that Job had been last seen alive at Ed's place.

"Went up to collect the mortgage, didn't he?" said someone.

KILLED 1, SHOT 2 IN CAFE, SOUGHT ANOTHER

New York, July 25.—One man was killed a young woman seriously wounded, and two other men slightly wounded by a gunman who shot his victims in an East Side restaurant.

Louis Francesco, of Manhattan, died shortly after being taken to a hospital with a bullet wound in his throat. The assailant escaped.

Jewel Harris, also of Manhattan, is in a critical condition suffering from a bullet wound in the side.

A moment after the fusilade of shots the killer was the only calm man in the room. Diners dashed madly to cover. Meantime, he stood over the unconscious body of Francesco and kicked it to make sure that his task was accomplished.

The murderer then walked around the restaurant, poking frightened men and women out of their hiding places with his pistol, and searching their faces. He was looking for another man, it is believed.

Failing to find another victim he walked out of the restaurant.

As he got into the automobile he was heard to snarl to his companion "I gave it to him."

STANDARD OIL BLAMED FOR FIRE

Bangor, Me., July 25.—The United States Circuit Court rules that static electricity may develop to a dangerous extent in the filling of a gasoline tank truck from a storage tank if the truck is not properly grounded by a safety chain. Damages of $23,000, against the Standard Oil Company for fire damages near the Caribou railroad station were upheld.

WAKEFIELD COP, ANGERED BY QUERY, TRIES TO HIT LAWYER

SUBDUED AT BOARD'S MEETING

Was Up Before Selectmen on Charge of Assault on Boy; Case Under Advisement

Dakefield, July 25. — "The cops are getting tough," said a witness at the Town Hall at 2 a. m. today when a meeting of Selectmen was thrown into confusion by the attempts of a Wakefield policeman to strike a Boston attorney.

The witness had reference to the recent incident in Salem court, when "Lightning Jack" Hayes, Beverly police chief, assaulted a lawyer.

In today's episode the patrolman was Gerase Stanley; the lawyer, Stanley A. Dearborn of Boston. Only the 200-pound bulk of another Wakefield patrolman saved the lawyer from being battered.

SETTLED BY QUESTION.

Stanley, appointed to the police force two months ago, was on trial before the Selectmen on charges of assault brought by Attorney Dearborn, who alleges the patrolman kicked and beat Charles Riley, seventeen years old, of Stoneham. Riley was returning home on the night of July 17, after an Italian carnival in Wakefield, when the alleged assault occurred.

In questioning Stanley, Atty. Dearborn suddenly cried:

"Are you under indictment?"

He had reference to Stanley' arrest in Somerville last winter when a child coasted into an automobile he was driving and was killed.

The patrolman turned away his head and wept. Chief of Police James J. Pollard objected strenuously to the question. The lawyer said he meant nothing personal.

"Yes you did," cried Stanley springing from the witness stand and making for the attorney. Patrolman Hardy Russell interceded while acting chairman Arthur E. Newcomb shouted for order.

"RUSSIANIZING" THE TOWN.

The hearing was delayed until long after midnight owing to a heavy business session of the selectmen. Attorney Dearborn said he had been advised by Judge Brier of Malden court to take the case to the selectmen.

"Tell the rest of it," shouted Chief of Police Pollard.

"All right, I will," said the attorney. "Judge Bruce said: 'The police of Wakefield are trying to Russianize the town!'"

Patrolman Stanley denied he assaulted Riley. He said the boy was cursing outcists when they refused to stop for him. "I told him to move on," he said.

Young Riley exhibited a torn shirt and was prepared to show bruises, he said, caused by the patrolman.

The case was taken under advisement by the selectmen.

TEETH MARKS ATTEST FATHER'S BRUTALITY

CARMELLA MATARAZZA

The six-year-old girl is today receiving the best of care at No. 43 Mount Vernon street. Her father, Amato, of No. 6 Prince street, South End, has been sentenced to six months for his brutal beatings. Tears coursed down the cheeks of Judge Murray and spectators in the court when the little girl was stripped to the waist and her bruises laid bare. In addition (as shown in insert) there were teeth marks on the legs.

SEEK ELOPING GIRL AT NANTASKET BEACH

Providence, July 25.—William F. Ide of Chepachet, asked the police to look for his sixteen-year-old daughter who he said had eloped. He stated that the girl "might be taken for twelve years old." She left a note explaining that she was going to marry William Jolly, twenty-eight, in Boston. According to Ide, his daughter and Jolly left in Jolly's touring car. The girl had long wanted to visit Nantasket and her folks believe she may be found there.

FILM IMPOSTOR RETURNS AFTER DISAPPEARING

Natick, July 25.—Mrs. Blanche Anderson, No. 12 Cochituate street, thirty years old, sought by the police for four weeks for the alleged desertion of her husband and her four children, returned home with a strange tale of adventure.

Mrs. Anderson, according to the story she told the police, turned her steps towards Hollywood, Cal., with the avowed intention of becoming a motion picture star. She got as far as Clinton, when for reasons she did not divulge, she abandoned her pilgrimage to Hollywood and became a clairvoyant palm reader, and general fortune teller.

Newspaper accounts of the attempted suicide of her sister interfered with her peace of mind and dimmed her powers as a clairvoyant, she said.

In January Mrs. Anderson successfully impersonated Anna Q. Nilson, motion picture star, at the Milford Opera House. When the imposition was discovered, she was arrested.

U.S. CUP CHALLENGER CRIPPLED; FRENCH BOAT HITS COLUMBIA

Gloucester, July 25.—The Columbia, American challenger for the International Fishermen's Cup, was run down today by the French boat La Champlain on the northeast bar off Sable Island, "graveyard of the Atlantic," according to a message received here.

The schooner lost her bowsprit, headgear and rails. She was towed to St. Pierre, Miquelon, for repairs. As far as is known no one was lost.

The place where the collision occurred is near that where the Esperanto, winner of the cup series the first year, was sunk and near where the Puritan, another challenger, went down.

POSSE TRAPS MAINE ABDUCTOR HIDING WITH GIRL IN CABIN

East Brownfield, Me., July 25.—Deputy sheriffs today located Charlotte May Adams, fourteen years old, who disappeared from her home in Bridgton Sunday night, and Lester Fraser, twenty-five-year-old Denmark mill worker, who has been twice married, after they had spoken in the door of a hut near Denmark.

The man was arrested on a charge of abduction and placed in the Fryeburg jail. The girl was taken home. She said she left home because she did not like her stepmother.

Casper, Wyo., July 25.—Unofficial estimates of the flood damage in the region west and northwest of here, extending as far as Thermopolis, is estimated at $1,500,000. The damage to the Burlington railroad between Armington and Thermopolis, a stretch of eighty miles, is close to $750,000.

Wires are down most of the way between Armington, 35 miles north-west of here, and Thermopolis.

CHARMING GIRL LIST GROWING

Watch for Photographer This Week, Girls; Free Trip to Atlantic City

Dorchester is out to win the Boston American's CHARMING GIRL tournament.

The first entrant from that section is Miss Vera M. Smith, an attractive young woman who resides at No. 32 Saranac street. She hopes to win the free week's trip to Atlantic City.

Miss Smith is twenty years of age and a capable musician. Her friends regard her as very charming and believe the artists who will act as judges will reach the same conclusion.

Girls who are spending their vacations at nearby Nantasket resorts and haven't good photographs of themselves for entrance in the tournament will be given a special opportunity, beginning today. A Boston American photographer will visit various beaches from 1 to 3 p. m. each day to make snapshots of girls between fourteen and thirty, inclusive, who desire to enter the tournament.

FREE PHOTOS FOR ALL.

Now, it's up to you, girls. You can't say we are not giving you a good opportunity to get into this great tournament which is to give a girl and her mother or other chaperon a trip to Atlantic City during paycut week that could not be duplicated for hundreds of dollars.

Young women who prefer studio photographs may obtain them for this tournament free of cost by applying at the various studios mentioned in the entry coupon. Merely tell the attendant in charge that you want a free sitting for entrance in the American's CHARMING GIRL tournament and everything will be properly arranged.

Several persons who have not read the stories in the American carefully seem to be under the impression that a girl may be entered without sending her photograph. Such is not the fact. A photograph MUST accompany the coupon as the artist judges are to get their preliminary selection from observation of the pictures. Then they will summon 25 of the young women before them for personal observation.

NOW FOR THE BEAUTY COUNT

The Boston American doesn't care whether the judges pick a girl who is rich or poor, whether she works in a factory, store or office. She may be a student or she may merely live at home. We don't know who she is but she lives somewhere in Greater Boston and we want every reader to help us find her. A girl may nominate herself or her relatives or friends may nominate her.

The formal opening of the Atlantic City pageant, which "Miss Boston," "Queen of the Fish" will attend, is scheduled for Wednesday afternoon, September 5, when King Neptune, ruler of the carnival, will rise from the sea, and accompanied by his Court of Beauty, will be received with elaborate ceremony. The girl who is selected as the most charming girl in Boston or vicinity will be a member of that Beauty Court.

The first evening "Miss Boston" and the CHARMING GIRL winners from 46 other cities of the country will take part in a playlet at a Boardwalk theatre. The second day "Miss Boston" will participate in the spectacular rolling chair parade along the ten-mile boardwalk. A specially decorated chair will be placed at the disposal of the "Queen of the Fish" for this occasion.

ALL EXPENSES PAID.

On Friday afternoon, Sept. 7, the girl who wins the American's tournament, will participate in the spectacular Bathers' Revue, if she wishes. Many prizes are offered in all these events, including a $5,000 Golden Mermaid statue as chief prize in the Bathers' Revue. The girl who wins this event will also capture the national beauty title and hold it for one year.

Remember, girls, that the Boston American will pay all expenses of this week's trip for you and your chaperon if you win. A suite at one of Atlantic City's famous waterfront hotels will be placed at the winner's disposal free for her entire stay.

She will have yacht rides, seaplane flights, automobile rides, special luncheons, banquets, attend dance and all manner of entertainments.

In addition she may be chosen for a $10,000 movie job as officials will be present looking for winsome girls for new productions.

DORCHESTER BEAUTY IS A CANDIDATE

MISS VERA M. SMITH

Miss Smith is the first from the Dorchester district to enter the American's Charming Girl Contest. The winner in this tournament will be crowned "Miss Boston" and, with a chaperone, will be awarded a free trip to the Beauty Pageant at Atlantic City.

2 WOMEN INJURED IN CRASH

Sedan Returning From Beach Collides With Mail Truck

Two young women were badly shaken up and bruised and, with their two male escorts, narrowly escaped serious injury when the sedan in which they were returning from a beach resort crashed into a United States mail truck at Tremont and Rolyston streets.

Less than a minute before the crash occurred half a dozen workmen of the water department had been engaged in shutting off a water gate on the exact spot where the cars collided.

The injured women were Marion Shay, twenty-three years old, and Celia Doherty, twenty-seven years old, both of No. 77 Hancock street, Cambridge. With them in the machine were Edward J. Cunningham, chauffeur of the automobile, of No. 63 Church street, Somerville, and James J. Brennan, of No. 8 Homer street, Somerville. Lewis Goldstein, of No. 25 Highland street, Revere, was driving the mail truck.

Goldstein, crossing Tremont street at Boylston, ran his truck onto the sidewalk in front of the Touraine Hotel in an effort to avoid the collision. Cunningham jammed on his emergency brakes, but the automobile skidded and sideswiped the truck. A wheel was torn off.

The women were treated by a physician and then taken to their homes.

GIRL FALLS 35 FEET, GETS ONLY FEW CUTS

The North End may well list among its candidates for circus honors thirteen-year-old Josephine Vella, prize "India rubber" exponent, who demonstrated her tumbling prowess by falling thirty-five feet from a third story fire escape at her home on 429 Hanover street, late yesterday afternoon.

Josephine Vella.

After enjoying a ride to the Relief Hospital, Josephine's total damage was discovered to consist of slight cuts about the face. She is back home again today, none the worse for her experience.

WRITES FRIENDS AND JUMPS OFF STEAMER

New York, July 25.—Notified by Washington police that C. L. Gresham had come here after writing letters to friends threatening to commit suicide, the police today learned that articles of his clothing had been found in an empty cabin when the steamer Concord berthed in Providence, R. I. His friends had notified the Washington police he had written them a note on stationery of a New York hotel, declaring he was "going to take a boat trip and jump off."

SOUTH END CHILD IS SEVERELY BURNED

Edna Lynch, four years old, of No. 25 East Concord street, South End, is on the danger list at City Hospital, suffering from severe burns about the face and body. The girl attempted to throw papers on the floor when her nightgown was ignited by the blaze. Her mother, upstairs at the time, heard her screams and came to her assistance, extinguishing the flames.

Weight Rule Ousts Popular Maine Mail Carrier

Winthrop, Me., July 25.—Because Arthur Jackson only weighs 111 pounds, this village has raised a voice of protest which the inhabitants say will be heard in Washington, unless a recent edict of the Civil Service Department is cancelled in the near future.

Several days ago the postoffice here was given a second class rating. Then came the announcement that Arthur, for six years one of the most popular mail men in the State, would have to "weigh in."

Found 14 pounds too light, Arthur was told he could no longer be the village letter-carrier because the civil service rules say that carriers in postoffices of city classifications must weigh 125 pounds.

KILLS HIMSELF FOR LOVE IN SHIP'S BUNKER

A shattered romance is believed to lie behind the mysterious death of Johannes Kuhrt, the young German steward found dead in one of the coal bunkers of the German freighter, Gutfeld, now at the Mystic pier, Chelsea.

The young German was strangled to death with his own belt.

Captain Otto Hardorf, of the freighter, declares it a case of suicide, so does the first officer, Wilhelm Stuffers.

Kuhrt was one of eleven stowaways who were found aboard the vessel after she left Hamburg.

"We told Kuhrt that we would give him a half hour in which to go back to his hiding place and produce his fellow stowaways," said First Officer Stuffers. "An hour later we went into the coal bunkers and there we found Kuhrt dead with his belt tightly drawn about his neck.

"I have been told that young Kuhrt, he was only twenty-six, was engaged to a beautiful German girl in Hamburg.

"One day he learned that he had acquired an incurable disease. He broke off with the girl."

JUDGE PUTS LAW FAKER IN DOCK

Charges "Lawyer" Lackanowitch With Criminal Record; Holds Him in $1,500 Bail

Judge Michael J. Murray in Municipal Court today began a drive on legal fakers, runners, shysters and ambulance chasers.

The first individual to get in the path of the steamroller was one Julius Lackanowitch of No. 75 Aldie street. He was ordered by Judge Murray to get into the prisoner's dock and Judge Murray thereupon addressed him as follows:

"There's been a lot of runners and shysters frequenting this court and we're going to clean them up.

"You've appeared here as attorney a number of times. You have been rather successful in getting bail process. You have been pleading for clemency for criminals.

HAS CRIMINAL RECORD.

"As a matter of fact, you're a criminal yourself, with a criminal record. The police records show that you have an alias, Lathoris, and that you've been up for larceny, subornation of perjury and other offences.

"I marvel at your effrontery and the nerve of some of the other of your ilk. You've had the audacity to come up here and represent clients, although you're not a member of the bar and not licensed to practice law."

Lackanowitch was arrested by Sergeant Thomas O'Donnell, following an investigation. He is charged with the illegal practice of law. After listening to the judge's remarks he pleaded not guilty and asked that bail be set at $500.

FIXES BAIL AT $1,500.

"Not on your life," said the judge. "I'll fix bail at $1,500, and you're lucky I can't make it more.

"The Bar Association has troubles enough without having to worry about impostors like you.

"In order to reassure you, I'll see to it that your case comes up before some other judge. Your case is continued to July 31, and by that time we hope to round up some more of your fellows."

By arrangement with Associated First National Pictures, Inc., in whose film version Corinne Griffith will appear as Countess Zattiany."

A young and beautiful woman creates a sensation at a first night in New York by rising in her seat at the theatre and coolly surveying the audience through her glasses, after the European fashion. Clavering and his friend, Dinwiddie, are immediately interested, and the latter receives a shock, declaring that she is the image of a former society belle, Mary Ogden, though much younger than she should be at that time. He thinks she may be a daughter. Clavering suggests that a society leader, Mrs. Oglethorpe, be asked to solve the mystery. She consents and calls on the fair unknown, but learns nothing. Clavering follows Mary home from the theatre and aids her to get into the house as she has lost her key. She invites him in.

"BUT I understood that Society did not attend first-nights.

So Judge Trent informed me. I love the play. Judge Trent told me that first-nights were very amusing and that I would be sure to be seen by no one I had ever met in European Society."

"Probably not," he said drily and feeling decidedly nettled at her calm assumption that nothing but the society of fashion counted. "But the people who do attend them are a long sight more distinguished in the only way that counts these days, and the women are often as well dressed as any in the sacrosanct preserves."

"Oh, I noticed that," she said quickly. "Charming intelligent faces, a great variety of types and many—but many—quite admirable gowns. But who are they may I ask? I thought there was nothing between New York Society and the poor but—well the bourgeoisie."

He informed her.

"Ah! You see—well, I always heard that your people of the artistic and intellectual class were rather eccentric—rather cultivated a pose."

"Once maybe. They all make too much money these days. But there are freaks, if you care to look for them. Some of the suddenly prosperous authors and dramatists have rather dizzy-looking wives; and I suppose you saw those two girls from Greenwich Village that sat across the aisle from you tonight?"

She shuddered. "One merely looked like a Hottentot, but the other!—with that thin upper layer of her short black hair dyed a greenish white, and her haggard degenerate green face. What do they do in Greenwich Village? Is is an isolation camp for defectives?"

"It was once a colony of real artists, but the big fish left and the minnows swim slimly about, giving off nothing but their own sickly phosphorescence."

"How interesting. A sort of Latin Quarter, although I never saw anything in Paris quite like those dreadful girls."

"Probably not. As a race we are prone to exaggerations. But are you not going to tell me your name?"

She had finished her supper and was leaning against the high back of her chair, her long slender but oddly powerful looking hands folded lightly on the black velvet of her lap. Once more he was struck by her absolute repose.

"But certainly. I am the Countess Zattiany."

"The Countess Zattiany!"

"The Countess Josef Zattiany, to be exact. I went to Europe when I was a child, and when I finished school visited my cousin, Mary Zattiany—I belong to the Virginian branch of her mother's family—at her palace in Vienna and married her cousin's nephew."

"Ah! That accounts for the resemblance," exclaimed Clavering. And then, quite abruptly, he did not believe a word of it.

"Resemblance!"

"Yes, poor old Dinwiddie was completely bowled over when you stood up and surveyed the house that night. Thought he had seen the ghost of his old flame. I had to take him out in the alley and give him a drink."

She met his eyes calmly. "That was the cause of his interest? Cousin Mary always said that the likeness to herself as a young woman was rather remarkable, that we might Mona gives a gay party, telling Pat to go to bed, but the latter borrows a sister's dress, steals downstairs and has "a taste of life." Mona dies and Constance receives a call from Cary Scott, her mother's first admirer. Scott is much taken with Pat. A party is planned for the Dangerfields to christen the new swimming pool. A thunder storm puts out the lights and the guests go into the water without clothes. Dee modestly hesitates on the balcony and then—the lights come on, revealing her in a blinding glare. Pat succumbs to Cary Scott. Dee's husband is badly hurt. She refuses to elope with Wollaston. Pat confesses to Dee her relations with Carey. She goes to New York to see Ralph Fentriss' "flossie" and is invited to Edna Carroll's parties. She meets Leo Slezak, and arranges to go to him in Boston but his appearance kills her love. She becomes engaged to Standish.

NOW GO ON WITH THIS ENTHRALLING STORY.

THEY had been engaged for four months. On the whole Pat found the status highly satisfactory. Everyone heartily approved the match. Because of Monty's college diction which pressed sorely upon him as he was having constant difficulty in keeping up, they saw little of each other, a fortunate circumstances, as the glamour of her lover's physical beauty and personal charm persisted in her mind when they were separated, creating a romantic figure to which no special mental attributes were essential. Had they been thrown more constantly together she might have been disillusioned by the torpid and unimaginative quality of his mind. But in their brief association over weekends they were surrounded by others, and when they were alone his ardent love-making shed out the acuteness of his conversational nearness. If sometimes Cary Scott's words, "companionship the rarest thing in life or love," seemed to her, arousing unwelcome questions, she put them away. Scott's image had dimmed again in the hot radiance of this new attraction; she deliberately kept it far in the background. But there was one unforgetting memory which refused to be permanently immured in the past.

When the time for the wedding was set, mid-June immediately after Monty's graduation (if he succeeded in graduating), she realized that she must face this memory and dispose of it, for her own peace of mind. Her uneasy thoughts turned to Dr. Bobs. Perhaps he could lay the ghost.

"Bobs, what do you really think of Monty?" She had gone to his office, nerved up to the interview.

Osterhout considered. "He means well," was his judicial pronouncement.

"What a rotten thing to say about a girl's best young man! What's the matter with him?"

"Stupid."

"Then you didn't really mean your congratulations."

"Certainly. It's an excellent engagement."

"Am I stupid, Bobs?" she pouted. "No. But I think you'll be perfectly satisfied with a stupid husband."

"I don't know what makes you so revolting today?" complained the amiable Bobs. "I don't have to live with him. He's a prize beauty all right. And rich!"

"There you go again. I don't care. (Defiantly) I love Monty, and that's enough. Anyway I didn't come here to talk about him exactly. It's something else. Bobs, do many girls confess to their doctors?"

Osterhout looked up sharply and frowned. Almost word for word Mona had put the same query to him years before. But Pat's face was more child-like, graver than that of the lovely, laughing, reckless Mona had been.

"Probably more than to their priests," he made reply. "That's easy for me, Bobs dear."

Indefinably his manner changed with his next words, became quietly attentive, soothing almost impersonal as he said: "Take your time, Pat. And when you're ready, tell me as much or as little as you wish."

"It isn't too easy—even to you. Can't you guess?"

"Ah," said he, after a pause of scrutiny, "So that's it."

"Don't look at me." She put her hands up as if to shield her face from flame. "Just tell me what to do."

"Are you in trouble?"

"Of course," said she impatiently. "Do you think I'd come bothering you—Oh, no! Not that way. Though it might have happened. Now you do know."

"Go on, Pat."

"Aren't you shocked?" Her eyes darted up at him, at once supplicating and defiant, from out the tangle of her vagrant hair.

"Not a bit. We doctors don't judge. We help."

"Oh, Bobs! You are divine. I want to know—it's awfully hard to put it—to know whether—if he'll know—when we're married."

"He?" Osterhout groped in a murk of bewilderment. "What?"

"Monty, of course. Don't be dumb."

"Monty? Isn't Monty the man?"

"Oh, no!"

For the moment Osterhout was startled clean out of his professional attitude. "Who is?" he said sternly.

Instantly Pat was mutinous. "I won't tell you."

"I'm sorry I asked it. It's none of your doctor's affair who he is. You want me to tell you whether your husband, when you marry, will know that you have had experience before."

"Yes," answered Pat under her breath.

"I'll answer you as I always answer that question."

"Always! Have you had it asked you before?"

A slight, melancholy, tolerant smile lifted the corners of the strong mouth. "My dear, every doctor who has had among his patients specimens of the modern, high-strung girl has had that problem put up to him. The answer is simple; no, he won't know—unless you tell him."

She drew a soft breath of relief, but almost at once her face darkened, as the import of his last words made its way to her quick sensitiveness. "Do you want me to tell him?"

"That is not a question for a physician to answer."

Pat stamped her foot. "Stop being one, then. Be Bobs again. Shall I tell Bobs?"

"Has he ever told you anything of that nature?"

"No. Perhaps there isn't anything to tell. Though I don't suppose he's exactly one of them dam' virgins. What do you know about him?"

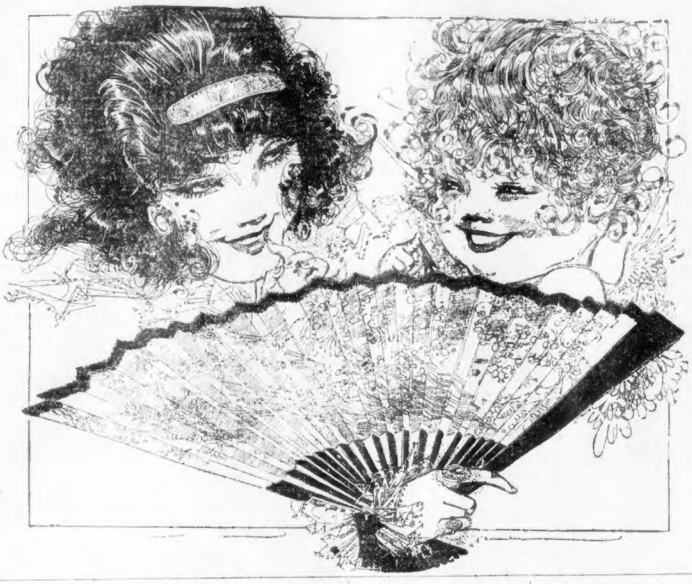

"Osterhout gave himself full time to debate the answer within himself before responding. "There was a rapid boat year on a notorious roadhouse near here. Several of our best youth—if you reckon them by family—were caught. Montgomery Standish was one of them."

WAYS OF A HUSBAND

By Ann Lisle

"WHY no—Neal is not home—is he coming?" Mr. Blaney retorted.

I'd not realized how high my hopes were until they were dashed. For a moment I was too unhappy to speak. Then I got myself in hand and managed:

"He's on a trip—for his health. His young wife died recently, when their baby wasn't a month old, and he was so broken up I thought he ought to go home for a little rest. You know you folks will always be home folks to Neal and me. Well, now that I've sent him off, his baby isn't as well as she ought to be and I want to get him back quickly. You'll be the one to handle this. So if he comes, will you tell him as much as you think best—and wire me at once?"

"I sure will. And I'm much obliged to you for knowing you could count on my diplomacy, Miss," came back in a tone of pompous gratification that made me realize how worth while it had been to plan my elaborate scheme of lies—for Neal.

When I said good-bye to Mr. Blaney, I left the telephone booth in better spirits than I'd hoped to know for a long time. I felt sure I had established one avenue of communication more than likely to lead us to Neal again. And though I hadn't told the truth, the falsehoods could harm no one and might save my young brother.

Without a thought of my own office I retraced my steps to Paris office. This time I found him in.

His face was haggard. It needed only its gray pallor and baron lines to make me realize how terrible his situation was. The credit of the Dalton-Sturges Realty Company hung in the balance. Poor Neal had put it there. I'd never had a more sacred task than the one of trying to save it.

"Pat!" I cried without stopping for sentimentary greeting or any formality than shutting the door of his private office tightly after me. "The option's all right. Tompkins gives us forty-eight hours."

Pat looked at me strangely. The relief and joy I'd expected were not in evidence.

"I got the option. I expected—Have you the sixty thousand dollars?" Pat asked.

"Haven't you sixty thousand dollars?" I asked Pat in astonishment, staring at him as I sat dejectedly in his big office chair.

It had never occurred to me that an organization as big as the Dalton-Sturges Realty Company would not be able to get hold of a sum like that in forty-eight hours.

"What kind of year are you thinking this is for real estate?" asked Pat dourly.

"But your credit's good." I suggested.

"We've borrowed up to the hilt to buy the corner lots on either side of the Tompkins strip," muttered Pat. "To on first and second mortgages real estate firms love. With conditions today and Carlotta gone I seem to be tiptoeing over ice in July! If only we could lay hands on the cash Neal had with him—when he disappeared."

"You're sure he had it with him when he left the apartment?" I asked.

"Would he have gone without it?" demanded Pat. "And to make doubly sure, it was myself asked him if he had everything with him all right. And he was after showing me the wallet just as he went out."

"Oh, if only he hasn't met with foul play." I moaned, permitting myself to relax for one instant into the anguish which had lurked just outside my heart all the day.

Handsome, debonair, sunshiny Pat glared at me.

DISCOVERING AQUILA

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

Famous Astronomer and Writer of Scientific Topics of Popular Interest.

IT would be difficult to find a more striking example of the love of pure knowledge, that is knowledge that serves only as food for the mind, than is presented by the observations of astronomers on the new star that burst out in the constellation Aquila in the Summer of 1918, and has now become only a nebular ghost.

This star, the brightest "nova" seen in three centuries, was almost simultaneously discovered by more than a hundred independent observers in June, 1918. During four successful years, although in the meantime it swiftly faded, more than 6,000 observations of the star were made by 248 observers, who sent their records to the Harvard Observatory.

These observers were spread widely over the earth, eighty-seven being in North America, three in South America, one hundred and thirty-one in Europe, eight in Asia, five in Africa and thirteen in Australasia.

There is something admirable in that! How Voltaire's giant visitor from Sirius, Micromegas," would have delighted in jotting down a note about these devoted stargazers, on this microscopic earth, watching the heavens to enlarge their minds. There he would have found a higher note than that sounded by the blood-stained warriors, and the piler-up of riches for moths and rust to consume.

It was simply divine curiosity, the pure desire to KNOW, that inspired those hundreds of watchers of "Nova Aquilae." Does not their action furnish evidence that there is something in us that overrides both time and space?

But in reality, this devotion to knowledge for itself alone, because it satisfies an insatiable appetite of the mind, is in evidence all around us if we will but note it. Only too many, apparently, are unaware of this inner life; or do not think it worth nourishing. Yet it lives, dully, in spite of them, while foolishly they starve and choke what is best and noblest in their nature.

The followers of Nova Aquilae live as truly by virtue of the imagination as by virtue of the physical body. Their eyes are only windows for the impressed mind. The mind strains to get free and fly to the star, to learn all its mystery. The "tropism" that draws it, like the flower to the light, is its unceasing need for more knowledge.

"In the next few months, perhaps weeks, BLACK OXEN will become one of the best selling books in Chicago and by the middle of Spring any woman who has not read it will find herself hopelessly out of the talk of the town, for it has many elements of popularity—it is as timely as today's newspaper. It has both mystery and suspense and a love story. It is more frank that anything F. Scott Fitzgerald or Robert Herrick ever attempted, and yet entirely respectable, and it marks the high point of achievement for Mrs. Atherton as a novelist."

Gertrude Atherton's genius is not essentially self critical, nevertheless, it is indubitably genius, genius of a higher quality than that possessed by the artist who struggles with words and phrases to achieve his ideal of perfection.

BLACK OXEN may be considered her most brilliant book up to date—once begun it doesn't permit itself to be dropped until finished. It will more firmly seat its author in the unique place she now occupies in our literature.—Carl Van Vechten in N. Y. Nation

I used to tire very quickly and suffer from wakefulness and had to bundle myself up whenever it was damp or drafty. But since I began taking Wincarnis I have had the energy and endurance of a middle-aged man, sleep soundly and withstand the severest of weather. I have noticed that Wincarnis keeps my appetite keen and that it strengthens my nerves and heart. If my fingers tremble and my heart flutters or I feel symptoms of depression or weakness, a dose of Wincarnis gives me relief within a few minutes."

"In BLACK OXEN Mrs. Atherton has produced an absorbing romance of imaginative feminine psychology. Quite the best thing she has done since "The Conqueror". It is a story with the true quality of romance brilliantly realized. Unique in the originality of its conception. The central theme is one that comes but once in a generation. Instinctively one returns to the Peau de Chagrin of Balzac for a story of such potential mystery, fanciful symbolism and startling originality."

still he wished to go where winds were fierce and waves were rough and nature seemed a foe. He fought with cruel handicaps in time's primeval dawn; but, as the long, slow aeons lapse, we see him—creeping on. He often stumbled, worn and spent, but still he scoffed at care as up and on he slowly went through aching centuries. For there were visions in his brain of ways, of goals that would gain in better. At first at hard close kin to rock wrestled with the stubhimself a speaking clod! Still restless after weary days, he peered through labor's up the azure ways he glimpsed, at last, the stars. Then, climbing on he slowly read the secrets they reveal, the wonders far about us spread, how suns and systems wheel. And seeking with lighter step he fared, and deep of learning's cup, and more and more he dared! He waged great wars with time and space, and in his restless quest he crossed the desert's dusty face and sailed the strange sea's breast. He felt the spell that beauty cast in ways he passed along; he answered to her lure at last and touched the heights of song. In tunnels like a mole he went, he soared the starry way—for man has never been content, nor was from Adam's day.

"This experiment in rejuvenation, this terrible struggle between an old mind's love of power and a young mind's need of love, all these tricks of plot and theme are for her, just wheels on which to run her storys and for us, bait to catch our interest, to lure us into the novel. The description is what she writes for, and what the good reader will read for. It is as a social description, done with power that one must praise BLACK OXEN." Buffalo News

CRIQUI AND DUNDEE WILL HAVE THEIR BATTLE TOMORROW

MANY FAVOR SCOTCH WOP

By DAMON RUNYON

New York, July 25.—More important, the writer thinks, than the Leonard-Tendler fight, is the battle Thursday night at the Polo Grounds between Eugene Criqui of France, featherweight champion of the world, and Johnny Dundee, Italian American.

Its importance is demonstrated by the fact that during all the excitement over Leonard and Tendler you hear as much talk of the featherweights as of the lightweights.

The Criqui Dundee battle will decide whether the featherweight title goes to France or remains in this country, not a matter for deep concern you may say, but of great moment to those whose minds find interest in boxing.

Criqui, whose jaw was shattered and whose face was marred by German [illegible] the featherweight [illegible] knocking out Johnny Kilbane, eleven years champion of the world.

MR. GALLAGHER and MR. SHEAN

THE Boston American awards each week an original Gallagher & Shean drawing to the reader who sends in the best Gallagher & Shean lyric.

One is selected for publication in this column every day, and on Saturday the selection of the best one is made and a drawing is mailed the winner.

Today's selection, which will be among the six from which the winner is selected this week, is by Leslie F. Mille, No. 14 Marble street, Framingham, Mass.

Oh, Mr. Gallagher, oh, Mr. Gallagher!
These modern days are jazz days, sure enough!
They are jazzing on the seas,
And dancing 'neath the trees,
They can't seem to get high-stepping enough.
Oh, Mr. Shean, oh, Mr. Shean
We simply can't resist the crinoline!
Still there's just two sorts of humans,
That this modern stuff illumines—
WHAT ARE THEY, MR. GALLAGHER?
MEN AND WOMEN, MR. SHEAN!

Try your hand at it. Address your lyrics to Messrs. Gallagher & Shean, care of the Boston American, No. 80 Summer street, Boston, Mass.

Newlywed Wails

By Nat N. Dorfman

WE don't know why they call 'em marriage vows, when as a general rule they're merely marriage rows.

Even though a fellow marries a dark-haired girl, it doesn't take him long to see the light.

When a wife tells you she saw the cutest hat on display, that's probably her way of gently breaking the news to you that she's bought it.

When a married man thinks of heaven he usually pictures it with one of the dashing girls in tights he saw at the girly show last.

A refusal in time sometimes is a means of permitting a man the right to lead his life as he darn well pleases.

Girl in Boston complains her sweetheart kisses her too much—news item. The only thing that'll cure this fellow is marriage.

A man doesn't have to be a mind reader to tell when his wife's going to have a C. O. D. package for him.

The Bible says, "Seek and ye shall find." And the men find that, despite the Paris edict, the women are wearing 'em as short as ever.

Before marriage a fellow has a lot of pet names for his sweetie; after marriage they become fret names.

A Vestibule Tragedy

I kissed her cheeks, her lips, her eyes,
She did not appear fussed;
But when her father saw me
I quickly kissed the dust.

Medbury Says—

By John P. Medbury

A CHICAGO girl shocked her whole sex the other day by saying that it should be the woman's place to propose marriage. She's right, if women did the proposing the men would have more time to attend to important things.

MANY a salesman has to let a good big order slip by just because he had to take the time to ask his sweetheart to marry him.

BUT if she proposed to him he could refuse her and get right back to business.

IT doesn't take a man half as long to say no as it does a woman.

A DAME might just as well do the proposing. She knows that she's going to marry the man long before he does.

BUT the average fellow usually has to propose twice before she accepts him once.

SHE'S afraid to say "Yes" the first time for fear he'll get consented.

THE best way to do is to propose to five or six girls in one night and somebody's bound to accept you before the evening is over.

OF course you've got to make up your mind which girl you want to marry. No dame in going to let you have an option on her.

YOU can't very well say, "Will you be my wife, dear, if the girl in the next block turns me down?

THE logical plan is to make out a list in the order you'd rather have them and then propose in rotation.

IF one of the dames on the list doesn't happen to be at home then she'll have to live without you for the rest of her life.

STILL you could give her another chance some time after you got divorced.

OF course if you don't get divorced, it will teach her a lesson and maybe after that she'll stick around the house.

NO dames between the ages of eighteen and thirty should go out at night without leaving a note pinned on the door where you can find her.

THIS is one reason why the girl should do the proposing. If she asks you to marry her and you turn her down, then she doesn't lose anything except ten or fifteen minutes.

NOT only that, but a dame knows much better than you do, whether or not she's able to support a husband.

A woman's place is in the home and if she does the proposing, it gives her a chance to pick out the home she wants.

ONCE-OVERS

DO NOT APPEAR CAST DOWN BY CIRCUMSTANCES

You wonder how some persons you know smile so easily.

They have less—often much less—to be happy over, than you have.

Still you cannot smile in the light-hearted way your friend does.

Is it possible that it is the difference between self-control and the lack of self-control which makes the conditions you notice so apparent?

You are worried about by many adverse or favorable combinations of circumstances which confronts you.

Happy when you have cause to be—sad and gloomy when little perplexities puzzle and worry you.

It is not fair to the one who seems so happy to conclude that it is because that one has no real trouble.

In the lives of most persons there are burdens of equal weight.

It is the spirit in which you accept the hard things which makes them seem heavy or unbearable.

Making a living and storing up for the future are the problems which come to nearly every soul.

Why should you be unhappy with your ample store for old age when your less fortunate friend who can accommodate so slowly can smile and look the future in the face with calm and steady eyes?

Flapper Fairy Tales.

Oswald—Well, darling, are you all set to go to the big dance next Monday night?

Imogene—Oh, Oswald, I wish you would take my sister.

Oswald—What's the matter, can't you go?

Imogene—Yes, but poor sister never gets taken out much and I thought it would be kind of nice if you could take her instead of me.

FORBES' VIEWS ON FINANCE

By B. C. Forbes

Every last man, woman and child of us likes to do or say something worthy of attracting attention. It is born in us and we start trying to attract notice almost before we can talk.

Usually the world rates the most successful that man who makes the biggest impression upon his fellow men, who attracts the widest notice.

Advertising is prompted simply by the desire to draw attention to products or service.

A great many men, especially young men, keep asking themselves and sometimes they doubtlessly ask you as they ask me—how they can attract the notice, how they can catch the eye of their boss. They itch to do something which will make a hit; they are eager to have the managerial spotlight turn on them.

I don't know what your advice is in such instances, but mine always is.

Say it with work. Say it with results.

The fellow who has in him the seeds of the best brand of success worries less over how he can do something spectacular that will single him out for favorable notice than over how he can do every little and big thing connected with his daily duties the very best he knows how. He thinks less about himself than about making himself useful and he is eager day after day and month after month to do a maximum of efficient work.

A reader sends this story from the "Sales Generator," published by the General Motors Truck Company; you will agree, I think, that it contains a useful pointer for most of us:

"Once there was a certain salesman who went to call on the president of a large company.

"'What do you want to see him about?' said the office boy.

"'All you have to do is to take in my card,' replied the salesman. 'My business is with the president.'

"'He said he doesn't want anything today,' was the boy's next contribution to the visitor's happiness.

"'Tell him I'll wait,' said the salesman, quietly.

"After which the president himself came out and surveyed the caller, who showed no signs of going. 'Come in,' he said.

"'I'm very busy,' remarked the president, as he sat down at his desk.

"'So am I,' replied the salesman, and we are both going to be busier before we get through with the results of what I am going to sell you.'

"Fifteen minutes later the president interrupted the visitor's statements.

"'I'm not at all interested in your products, he said. But I'm interested in you. How would you like to sell for us? You can make twice what you are making now.'

"'Are you going to sign this contract?' asked the salesman, tapping the paper that lay on the president's desk.

"'I don't think so,' said the other, looking at him curiously.

"'Then I certainly can't sell for you,' replied the salesmn. I came here to see you sign that contract. If you do that, I may consider myself good enough to sell for you. But if you don't, you are wasting your time considering me.'

"'But, you young chump,' said the president warmly, 'I don't like your product, but I like you.'

"'Thanks,' said the salesman, 'as it happens, the product is better than I am, I have done it an injustice by taking your attention off it and attracting it to myself.'

"'I'll give it a trial,' said the president, signing. 'You're the first man I ever met who thought more of his product than he did of himself.'"

Fame is not unlike happiness in this respect; if you set out deliberately to gain it, the harder you chase after it, the less likely you are to attain it.

Most of the men who have made the greatest mark in the world have simply applied themselves with every iota of diligence and intelligence they could command, to doing their darnest and letting the credit take care of itself.

* * *

Go after the right kind of results and in time you will get all the credit, all the limelight that is good for you.

40 POINT DROP IN JULY COTTON

New York, July 25.—With the exception of July which declined 40 points, the cotton market was firm at the opening, with prices advancing from 9 to 22. The new crop months were influenced by reports of insufficient rains in Texas.

July continued under pressure, representing belated liquidation due to notice day. July sold at 23.50, off 40, October 22.57, up 9, December at 22.60, up 22, January at 22.80, up 20, and March at 22.86, up 15.

DROPS EXTEND OVER WIDE RANGE

Recessions covered a wide assortment of representative shares including the steels, equipments, oils and sugars during the early stages of the market on the New York Stock Exchange. Selling became fairly general after the first half hour and resulted in losses running from a fraction to over a point.

Considerable pressure developed and there was evidence of a continuation of the recent short selling operations. Bears were in complete control and they pressed their position in every group.

Cosden was the weakest feature in the oil division. The shares broke 1½ points to a fresh 1923 low. Royal Dutch started a point lower, while practically all of the other petroleum offerings gave away fractions.

Rails were unable to resist the attacks. A fractional dip in Northern Pacific carried th equotation to a new year's low. St. Paul preferred and Great Northern preferred each yielded more than a point. Canadian Pacific and Reading each managed to strengthen slightly.

Miscellaneous shares found the going rather hard. Associated Dry Goods cracked two points. Sears Roebuck, American Woolen, Mack Trucks and Stewart-Warner were prominent on the downward side.

Activity developed in Studebaker. Scale buying was reported in this issue. The shares, however, were forced down nearly a point. Kelly Springfield also softened almost a point.

AIDRONDACK Power & Light Corporation June report showing gross earnings of $528,606 and net of $81,293, an improvement over the same month a year ago of 21 per cent. and 7½ per cent. respectively, indicates that the company is making substantial progress in building up its production to a point where it can tke care of all demands.

HORNBLOWER & Weeks—After early irregularity we look for a stronger tone to develop which should carry the market forward.

BUILDING PERMITS EXCEED LAST YEAR

Building permits throughout the United States during the first half of 1923 were 36.5 per cent. ahead of the same period in 1922, but permits issued in June were only 2.3 per cent. ahead of the volume issued in June, 1923, and 10 per cent. less than in May of this year.

Corn—July, 86½.

Oats—July, 40 to 40¼; September, 34⅜; December, 36½.

IRREGULAR AT QUIET MARKET IN BOSTON

Irregularity characterized early transactions on the Boston Stock Exchange. The trading was extremely quiet and came only from the professional element.

Pacific Mills was stripped of its $1.50 quarterly dividend and showed a gain of a point at 89. Amoskeag common recovered 1¾ points of its recent loss when it rose to 78.

General Electric suffered a setback of 2⅜ points to 172¾. Isle Royale reacted another point to 24.

Fractional upturns were found in Boston Elevated common, American Telephone, Boston & Maine Class D preferred, Utah Apex and New Cornelia.

Anaconda, Michigan, Wolverine, United Shoe common, United Fruit and Island Creek Coal common were among the reactionary offerings.

Trading on the Boston Curb was again quiet. Small gains were made by Crystal Copper, Nixon Nevada, Verde Central and Salida.

Boston Notes

CALUMET & Hecla buying is based on the belief that directors will start the new stock on a $5 per annum basis, or equivalent to $40 per share on the old.

SHATTUCK Arizona Copper Co. reports for second quarter of 1923 total income of $316,422 and net income of $96,634.

UNITED Shoe has recently met excellent buying. This has been based on the maner in which earnings are now running and the prospects of something more than the $2 rate now in operation.

MASSACHUSETTS Oil Refining Co. has declared the reorganization plan operative, a substantial majority of holders of the 7 per cent. bonds and gold notes having assented to it.

MOHAWK has at the moment about $1,900,000 in net quick assets, or about $19 per share on the present capitalization. About $1,000,000 of this is in cash.

BOSTON & Worcester Street Railway Co. reports for the six months ended June 30, a surplus after bond interest of $4,027, against a deficit of $5,141 in same period of 1922.

London Has Many New Investments

New investment offerings on the London market during the first six months of the year totalled 123,524,000 pounds sterling. Of that amount 32,875,000 pounds sterling represented home investments, while 90,649,000 pounds sterling were securities of British overseas countries and foreign borrowers.

While the total amount of new offerings in six months was less than the volume for corresponding periods of preceding years since 1919, the amount comprising British overseas and foreign investment offerings was larger proportionately than for any half year since the armistice.

ERIE.
To J. H. W., Bath, Me.

Speculative stocks like Erie are not for minors nor yet for those living so far from the speculative securities market as you do. You would not be investing if you were to buy Erie preferred. We should be inclined to advise you to keep your money in the bank were it not that you could buy $200 Illinois Bell Telephone first and refunding 5s, 1956, to yield over 5 per cent. The bonds are a direct mortgage on the Bell Telephone properties in almost the entire State of Illinois, including Chicago.

ST. PAUL.
To M. F., Everett:

Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul gold 4s, 1925, outstanding in the amount of $35,000,000, are secured by an equal face amount of Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul European 4s, 1925, which with other issues, totaling over $200,000,000, are a lien on over 10,000 miles; also secured by $154,000,000 first 4s, 1949, a first lien on 2,289 miles. Apparently the road is earning interest charges, but for the last five years it did not earn those charges. This record alone would preclude calling them "a wonderful bargain." General Electric debenture 3½s, 1942, which afford a current income of 4⅜ per cent. and a yield of 5⅛ per cent., would be better for a woman's investment.

WHAT TO BUY.
To E. N., Commercial St.

The same condition will not arise in Westinghouse 7s or Vacuum Oil 7s. Even if they are called before maturity, the redemption price will not be less than you paid. Why not sell $2,000 du Pont 7½s, retining $2,000 at 97¼, if you do not care for the prospect of a call?

In their place you might buy $2,000 New York Telephone refunding 6s, 1941, non-callable to 1931, when the premium for redemption is 5 per cent. All your bonds are good. Though Midvale Steel & Ordnance 5s are not high grade, their assumption by Bethlehem Steel does not weaken the security for your principal. You have plenty of guaranteed mortgages.

Your list could stand the insertion of a railroad and a public utility bond. Buy $2,000 each New York Central refunding and improvement 5s, 2013, and Illinois Bell Telephone first and refunding 5s, 1956. These bonds yield about 5.30 per cent.

GOOD INCOME.
To B. R., Chicopee.

The uncertainties attached to their industries place the oils and motors in the speculative class. In fact, most of the common shares you name seem little suited to a man with but $3,000 to invest. American Telephone & Telegraph is good and should be included. Were American Tobacco, the other "high-priced" stock, also purchased, you would not have a broad field for diversity. American Woolen preferred affords a higher yield than Endicott Johnson preferred, though the latter is excellent. You could buy ten shares each American Telephone & Telepragh and American Woolen preferred and fifteen shaes of North American preferred for about $2,900. Your income would be $205 a year or over 7 per cent., and your principal, in our judgment, would be more secure than in common stocks.

PLAN TO DEFEND RESERVE BANK SYSTEM

Bankers are awaiting the storm which is expected to break soon over the Federal Reserve system. A number of financiers have publicly advised that bankers adopt a concerted program in defence of the reserve system against the expected political attacks in Congress.

According to men who have studied the situation, the hostility shown in some of the outlying regions of the New England States is merely the heritage of the dislike for the old Boston Clearing House, which has been supplanted by the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston. This dislike was described as the apparently natural antipathy shown by country banks toward city banks, and which hundreds of smaller cities and towns have displayed against the so-called Wall Street crowd.

The whole condition is due to a lack of understanding of what the Federal Reserve system stands for, according to the views of most New York bankers.

PHILLIPS PETE IN SOUND CONDITION

Phillips Petroleum net earnings for six months ended July 1 were $8,000,000, after setting aside $1,000,000 for Federal taxes and after depreciation, according to statement made by President Phillips.

Out of $8,000,000 earned, slightly over $1,500,000 was paid in dividends. He adds that there is no reason why the present conservative policy should not be continued.

WEST ROXBURY DEMANDS FLAT RATE FOR ICE

Unless the State Commission on the Necessities of Life declare otherwise, the greater part of West Roxbury, except the Manthorne Road section and Roslindale, will pay 50 cents per 10 pounds for ice and the remainder 60 cents because of the hilly character of territory served by the Highland Ice Company.

A hearing on the question of the price of the ice was held in the office of Sealer of Weights and Measures in City Hall annex. Deputy Sealer John J. Martin presided.

William J. Drew, John Hamilton, president of the West Roxbury Citizen's Association; F. G. Floyd, Mrs. H. E. Roberts, and Mrs. J. V. Smith of the Roslindale Community Club, Francis A. Morse and Charles S. Carr of the Finance Commission, the latter appearing only as an individual, wanted the 50-cent rate to apply to all the district served by the ice concern.

Ichabod Bunker, president of the Highland Ice Company, explained there must have been some misunderstanding as to the extent of the territory in which the reduction was to take place from 60 cents to 50 cents.

Deputy Sealer Martin declared that the hearing was beyond his jurisdiction, inasmuch as he could only pass on the question of short weights.

The hearing adjourned to await the report of the State Commissioner in the matter.

CREDIT FOR RESCUE DUE ROXBURY MAN

Credit for the heroic rescue of an unidentified man in the surf at Whitehead, Nantasket, who was in peril of drowning, should go to James J. Lyons, of No. 713 Dudley street, Roxbury, according to Lyons' friends, and not elsewhere, as reported. Lyons brought the exhausted man ashore unaided after other rescuers had failed in the attempt.

D. J. Sullivan Dies

Daniel J. Sullivan, fifty-three years old, well known in Newspaper Row as a messenger for the Western Union, died at his home, No. 17 Trenton street, Charlestown.

RATS ARE DANGEROUS

Of late years there seems to be more cases of rats attacking and biting human beings than usual. They have always had a reputation for fighting fiercely when cornered, but it was rarely that they were known to boldly attack persons. To show the danger incurred from these dangerous pests we are reprinting a news item from one of the Boston papers of recent date:

A huge rat attacked 5-year-old Joseph Magner as he lay asleep in his bed at 680 Beach street, Revere, and then turned on the lad's grandmother, Mrs. E. McCormick, when she went to his assistance, biting her severely, according to a report made to the Revere police today.

Both the victims were lacerated by the teeth of the rodent and are in some danger, according to Dr. Louis J. Skirbau, of contracting blood poison. The physician believes that the prompt cauterizing of the wounds has lessened this to some extent.

The boy and his grandmother were occupying the same bed when the woman was awakened early in the morning by the screams of the little fellow. Hastily turning on the light, she discovered a huge rat in the bed.

ATTACKS WOMAN

It had bitten the boy on the arm, and blood was streaming from the wound, and as Mrs. McCormick aimed a blow at it with the nearest weapon at hand, the rat, instead of retreating, turned its attention to her.

As she missed her aim, it sank its teeth into her right hand, biting her almost to the bone. She shook it off and renewed her attack. The rat continued fighting until a well aimed blow stunned it. The rodent crawled off and disappeared in a corner of the room.

Dr. Skirbau was summoned by telephone and dressed both wounds. He is giving constant attention to the victims in order to forestall more serious effects from their injuries.

Martin's Rat Powder will exterminate the rats on your premises if you use it. It is easy to handle and the directions are on the can. Why not start after the rats today? Faneuil Hall Conference Makes Good Beginning

Thers was a gathering at Faneuil Hall on Suncay for the purpose of forming a political organization which would unite the forwardlooking people of all parties in an attempt to promote the election of liberal candidates for public office in all parties.

Organized labor and the socialistic organizations were well represented. Delegates from more than eighty-five societies were present. As must be expected in such a gathering there were those who wanted to start a new pary at once.

The meeting was called urder the auspices of the National Conference held at Cleveland recently, which disrowed the intention of forming a new political party, and a majority of the conference at Faneuil Hall decided that it would be better to keep within the objects of the call for the meeing and to reject the proposal for a third party. William I. Johnson, president of the National Conference, very strongly urged the delegates to avoid for the present, at least, an attenpt to form a third party, for it would only restrict the scope of their action and the influence of those who might otherwise cooperate with them.

The action of the conference indicated a good judgment and made a good beginning of a very importat work. If this organization develops as conditions give it opportunity, it will have a great influence upon the immediae future of the nation. We are again at the parting of theways. The reaction which followed the war is being rected upon. The tide of American progress is still flowing. Bt one of its seventh waves reached its highest mark on the shres of time in 1918 and receded for nearly four years. Now, however, it is rolling in again and organiations which as capable of taking advantage of its flow will help to land ar necessary reforms on a higher and dryer place still.

We hope that the movement to gather togeter forwardlooking people of all parties whose aims are conructive and not destructive, will grow in strength and inude all the States. We need such an organization and we eed it very badly. Like all efficient organizations the one alled by the Cleveland conference has adopted a definite pogram with which this newspaper is in accord and which w promise to support all we can, for we have been supporting hese policies for years before the Cleveland conference occurrd.

These policies are the public ownership and peration of the railroads, the repeal of the Esch-Cummins law, the direct election of the President and Vice-President by the people, the doing away with unnecessary middleman's profits and helping to increase the price the farmers receiv from their products and to decrease the price which the cosumers have to pay for the farmer's products, and the takin away from our courts the power to nullify an act of the peple's representatives under certain circumstances.

We wish Mr. Johnson, Mr. Fechner, Mr. Iegood, Mr. Roewer and their associates the utmost success

A Dollar May Be Worth $650 —and Many Times as Much

Copyright, 1923, Star Company

Charles E. Rogers had a silver dollar of the hue of 1804.

This silver dollar, very rare, is valued by th dealers in antique coins at $650.

Somebody stole the dollar from Mr. Rogersand as Mr. Rogers said, "Probably went out and bought adrink with it." It grieves Mr. Rogers to think of that $6ß drink. It would grieve the thief also, probably, if he knw about it; also the bootlegger.

An alarm was sent out inviting the finder of te valuable dollar to return it and earn reward.

Many men will examine any silver dollar eceived in change, hoping to find the date of 1804, which wuld change the single dollar into six hundred and fifty.

It would be a good thing if the men and women looking out for that one dollar, which is worth six hundre and fifty of its kind, would realize that almost ANY dolr can be worth six hundred and fifty dollars, and a great eal more.

They say that John D. Rockefeller has the 1st dollar that he ever earned still in his pocket or his safe.

That dollar was worth much more than six hudred and fifty. It was worth a good many hundreds of millios of dollars. For the fact that Rockefeller saved it, realize its value and power, is the fact which explains his having savd so many other dollars and piled them up into the great fortne which builds universities, scientific institutions and, at times, controls the government.

If he had not been able to save that first dolla he would not have saved the others.

Take any dollar out of your pocket, look at it nd realize what it means.

In that dollar there is a man's work for a whol day, and there is FOR YOU freedom from slavery and frm poverty for at least one day.

Look at the dollar, realize that it represents lnor, value, frozen into money.

KEEP THAT DOLLAR, not in your pocket, bt in a savings bank, and add other dollars to it until you have six hundred and fifty—it won't take you long if you once ealize that dollars saved mean liberty and freedom from sewility and submission to other men.

The man who has saved some money, and WH6 HAS IT, knows what saving means, knows what dollars are worth.

You will not find that $650 coin, but the dollar that is in your pocket now, or the next dollar that you get, may be more valuable to you than the 1804 coin.

Look at it and think about it. Make up you mind to make that next dollar received the foundation of a great family of dollars OWNED BY YOU. Do that, and sone dollar without any special date, or history, or value, will be worth more to you than many coins of 1804, worth more to you than all the coins in the world—for it will give you peace of mind, which is a blessing far beyond the value of money.

Some of the men and women who read this will say to themselves: "There MAY be something in that. I believe I will take just one dollar now and see how many I can add to it."

Why don't YOU say that and do it?

DEBATE ON BOBBING HAIR

KANSAS CITY, Mo., July 25.—Kansas City has been divided into two factions over the problem of how, if at all, girls should bob their hair. One faction favors the new "King Tut" style, and the other sticks to the old-fashioned bobbed-marcelled method.

A poll of local male followers of female fashions shows that the majority favor the Egyptianized flapper, masculine sentiment seeming to be that the slick bob, long skirts and straight-line "motifs" are ultra su fait.

Road Hogs and Speeders

Editor Boston American:

There ought to be a law to arrest every driver who travels five or ten miles an hour on the highway. Most accidents are caused by drivers of this kind, as they are usually road hogs. Those who follow must pass them. I saw a machine go in the ditch because of one of these drivers. Another danger and perhaps a death caused by the five and ten-mile road hog is, for instance: Suppose you are hurrying a patient to a hospital, how can you get there with a road hog in front of you? In my three years of riding (I do not drive) I have seen more accidents caused by road hogs than from the speeder or anything else. The speeder, nine out of every ten, knows his car and is a good judge of distance. I do not encourage speeding at all, but he is not one-third as dangerous as the road hog. M. W.

Jobs for Policemen

Editor Boston American:

Many of our policemen are athletes. Many are excellent swimmers. Why not suggest to our police commissioner that each policeman proficient in swimming be assigned to a public beach at least one week during the swimming season to give free swimming instructions to the public?

THEY DIDN'T TAKE HIRAM JOHNSON INTO CAMP

By Herbert Kaufman

AS the President leaves Alaska, Hiram Johnson returns from a four months' survey of European conditions and announces at the gangplank re-fortified convictions against any form of foreign entanglement.

Senator Watson, administration wheelhorse, automobiling from Indianapolis to the Capitol, not only assures us that Republicans won't support Mr. Harding's World Court plans, but actually expresses doubt of his party's 1924 chances if the adversities now threatening agricultural States are not somehow forestalled.

Secretary Hughes writes a letter to Samuel Gompers and at Senator Brookhart.

He maintains his original position against Soviet recognition, characterizes the Communists as international outlaws, insists that Lenine and Trotzky are still bent upon the overthrow of existing forms of government, and refuses to deal with Russia until obligations to American citizens are acknowledged and the payment of other legitimate debts guaranteed.

Political weather observers forecast a very stormy session for the next Congress.

"The Old Guard Never Surrenders"

Senator Walsh of Massachusetts, another overseas pilgrim, finds no evidence of chaos in Europe. Everybody he met was busy and prosperous, more inclined to discuss cancellation of debts than the League of Nations.

The Senator's mood will be less optimistic when he learns that miners and coal operators are still at a deadlock.

Present agreements have only five weeks to run, and it's an even break that September will bring another anthracite strike.

The Federal Fuel Board may intervene, but don't take a chance. Call up your coal dealer and fill furnace bins—now.

De Valera submits to the inevitable and declares himself henceforth for the restoration of peace and order in Ireland.

Mrs. Mary MacSwiney and her diehards, however, do not lay down arms. Fighting against the Free State will never cease until her rebellious spirit is quenched. Men yield to circumstance—women serve their grief and vengeance to the end.

Into One Pocket and Out of the Other

A dollar is no bigger than its buying power. More money in the pay envelope means nothing if the difference hasn't put better clothes in the closet and more food in the pantry.

Prices and wages rise together. Living costs eventually absorb increased earnings. Twelve-dollar bricklayers aren't living in finer homes, wearing superior shoes or carrying fuller lunch pails than they had in 1914.

Economics is a process of tits for tats. Variations in production expense are always passed on to the consumer.

Manufacturers employing almost seven million men gave them, in 1921, more than double what they received seven years before for the same work.

The cash takings of these concerns correspondingly grew, from twenty-four to forty-three billion dollars.

Nobody seems to have won but the tax collector.

He Barked Up the Wrong Tree

A railroad attorney recently asked a train conductor to file a telegram at an approaching station, and was curtly told to attend to his own business.

When the train came to a stop, he tried to leave his car, but found the vestibule doors locked.

By the time he had run through the train, it was too late, and so an important connection was missed.

Afterward he presented his card to the conductor and explained what had happened.

"Why didn't you tell me who you were?" was the reply.

"I took you for one of the passengers in the tourist car. I am sorry that I was hasty."

"You don't regret that you were disobliging," rejoined the lawyer, "but are sorry you have made the mistake of being insolent to someone with sufficient influence to have you reprimanded."

All who pay an equal price for service are entitled to an equal degree of civility.

Big corporations, no matter on what other scores they may be criticised, are shrewd enough to realize the profit in good-will.

Every complaint against officious little officials guarantees better treatment to the next man.

Celluloid Magic

A herd of reindeer tramples the Lapland snows; polar bears leap from a hummock of ice and dive into Arctic vasts; a moth breaks its cocoon, pauses a moment to dry fragile young wings, and essays its first eager flight.

A water beetle darts upon a snake, sinks its forceps below the head, and clings to the threshing, maddened reptile, while a hundred fellows join the attack and strike until the coup de grace is reached.

An otter sneaks upon a rock, slashes a cruel paw in the stream, and a quivering trout lies at his feet.

The magic carpet is outdone by news reel and educational film. Day by day treasures of the wild are captured in their haunts and laid before us.

Kings ride to be crowned; Moorish potters whirl their wheels.

The mystic Nile flows in the glow of the dying sun; shadowy camels pace her banks; Pyramid and Sphinx stand ghostly in the dusk.

Spanish troops embark for Tangiers; temples and burning ghats at Benares succeed a Bagdad wedding procession, and a battle fleet steams out to sea, while you lean back at your ease and with a talismanic coin command the world to disclose its mysteries and parade its adventures upon the silver screen.

Small wonder that the modern child holds fairy tales in slight esteem.

Just Out of Hospital

Editor Helping Hand:

I wonder if there is someone to help me out of my present difficulty. Am just out of the hospital, and was sick for a long time before. I now find myself without money or suitable clothing to resume my work as a saleswoman in a department store. I am twenty-two and wear size 36 or 38. Any help will be gratefully received.

MISS H. S.

Baby Needs Crib

Editor Helping Hand:

My husband has not been expected to live for five days in the City Hospital. He is just out of danger now. My baby is there too. The baby is coming home in about three days and I wonder if any of your kind readers have a crib for him. It is so hot, and he has only his baby basket to sleep in, and it is too small for him. I have no money to buy one, as the church is taking care of me and my girl, as I had only seven dollars.

More Money for Mrs. M. H.

Editor Helping Hand:

Enclosed, please find five dollars. Will you please forward it to Mrs. M. H., the 70-year-old lady. Wish her the best of luck and success in getting help.

E. A. G.

Another check—this one for eighteen dollars—has been forwarded to Mrs. M. H. This includes your generous contribution. Many thanks.

Editor Helping Hand:

I am sending five dollars for Mrs. M. H., the seventy-year-old lady I read about in today's paper. I feel so sorry for her, as I know what it means to worry about the rent. I have had a lot of trouble like that myself on account of having a sick husband for years, but he lately passed away. I also have received help from your Christmas Basket Fund for a few years. I have taken this way to show my appreciation and wish I could do more.

MRS. E. H.

This is especially generous, and we are deeply touched. Your contribution has been forwarded to Mrs. M. H.

Magazines for Woodsman

Editor Helping Hand:

While in the Maine woods recently on a fishing trip I came in contact with a man who is doing wonderful work up there supplying free reading matter to woodsmen, many of whom are out of touch with civilization for months at a time. If any of your readers have old magazines or other suitable reading matter that they have no further use for I will be pleased to put them in touch with this man.

Allston J. W. E.

Giver Needs Help

Editor Helping Hand:

I have a blue suit size 40, and two suit coats, one size 38 and the other for a fifteen-year-old girl. I sent a lady a coat a few weeks ago. She has written me two letters of thanks. Now I am asking a little help. I have eleven children, the oldest seventeen and the youngest five months. We are to be evicted Tuesday and have no place to go. We have been looking for a place, but no one wants to rent to anyone with a family of children. We can't afford much, as my husband is not very well. I thought perhaps someone would have a place. I don't care if it is a ways out and has water in it. We could pay $20 a month.

MRS. E. E. N.

Thank you for the offer. You have been sent the address of Mrs. E. E. who needs the clothing. Hope you get a place.

Help for Mrs. J. B. W.

Editor Helping Hand:

I live in Chelsea, and have a double pedestool and spring. I shall be glad to deliver to Mrs. J. B. W. if you will send me her address.

MRS. M. F. L.

Editor Helping Hand:

In your issue of the American for July 19 I read a pitiful letter signed Mrs. J. B. W. Please let me have her address by return mail. I will see that she gets her milk every day for a while, and also food.

J. G.

Editor Helping Hand:

I would like the address of Mrs. J. B. W. Her plea touched me. I will be able to help her with money and perhaps in other ways. I haven't tried to help any out of town people before because I didn't feel able. I have been helping needy families near my home with clothes and food. I have a great many articles of cast-off clothes.

MRS. C. R. F.

Editor Helping Hand:

Will you kindly send me the address of Mrs. J. B. W., whose appeal is in your column today? I think I can give her a little help, financially, which seems to be what she needs. I am sure your work is enjoyed as much by those who are able to give as those who receive help.

M. B. S.

Editor Helping Hand:

I am enclosing $1.00 for Mrs. J. B. W., whose appeal was in last night's American. I wish it was more.

MRS. F. J. M.

Editor Helping Hand:

Would you please rush the enclosed two dollar bill to Mrs. J. B. W., whose appeal was in Thursday's American. One reads almost daily in your column of fellows deserting their wives and small children. It is a shock to one to realize that there are so many skunks in the world.

NEMO.

Editor Helping Hand:

Will you please forward enclosed $1.00 to Mrs. J. B. W. for her baby's milk. Will send one next week if you will send me her address.

W. O.

The editor is very grateful indeed for all this generous help that has been offered to Mrs. J. B. W. in the above and other letters. The money has been forwarded to her, and her address has been sent to all these generous readers.
